There is no place like home —when Pearline is used in it. There is no place about home where Pearline can't be used. Pearline takes the hard work and drudgery out of—keeping a home clean. It is next to having the washing and cleaning done for you, and well done at that.

It washes everything that can be washed. It cleans paint, marble, carpets, hangings—in fact everything cleanable. It is a luxury in the bath. It is emphatically without harm to person or things. With Pearline you have rest; it rests with you to have Pearline.

LAUGHS AT CRIME.

A Boy Murderer Who Startles the World.

He Pushed His Companion Over a Cliff

And Rejoiced at the Suffering of His Victim.

He Wanted to Give the Hangman a Job.

Once Before He Had Held a Boy Under Water Until Dead, but the Body Floated Away and His Story Was Not Believed.

London, Nov. 19.—Weymouth is excited over a murder committed by a youth named Wise, one of the apprentices belonging to the training-ship Boscawen.

The facts are as follows: John Wise, aged fifteen; Lawrence Salter, aged fourteen, and George Groom, aged fifteen, all cadets on the trainging ship Boscawen, stationed at Portland, went berrying yesterday on the cliffs between that place and Weymouth. Groom became momentarily separated from his two companions, and, on returning, saw Wise lying prone, with his head projecting over the cliff, and looking down at something below. Groom leaned over and was horrified to see Salter writhing in agony on the stones below.

Wise had taken advantage of Groom's attention being diverted to pounce upon the unsuspecting Salter and throw him over the precipice, seventy feet high. Wise was enjoying himself hugely, laughing and mocking at his late companion's contortions. Groom uttered and exclamation of horror, whereupon Wise turned savagely upon him and seemed inclined to kill him also, which he could very likely have done, as Groom was the smaller of the two.

Groom realized his danger and made peace with the murderer, who refrained from killing him, as he explained, on condition that he say nothing of what he had seen.

Wise and Groom returned to the ship, where Wise, forgetting his command to Groom to keep silent, himself told the commander, when asked where Salter was, that he had killed him. The boy laughed heartily as he told the horrified officer how the crime was committed.

"Larry squirmed lovely," he exclaimed, with glee.

Groom confirmed the story of Salter's fate, and a party was at once sent in search of the missing lad. They found him not yet dead, as had been thought by Wise and Groom, but dying. He moaned, "Oh, my back, my back," and while he was being conveyed to the Portland Prison Infirmary he died. His back and nearly every bone in his body had been broken by the terrible fall.

Wise was placed in irons, but continued to boast of his deed and exult over Salter's sufferings until he was threatened with the gag if he did not keep quiet.

Later in the evening the young murderer wrote out his confession. He declared that he killed Salter because he wanted to be hanged. It was the ambition of his life, he said, to be executed. He had pushed a boy into the water some time in the early part of this year and held his head under until he was drowned but the body floated away, and though he told of the deed nobody would believe his story, so he could not be hanged for the crime.

He had felt ever since that he must kill some one on land, so that the finding of the body would prove his story when he told of the murder. Yesterday was the first time a favorable opportunity presented itself, and he embraced it. He had nothing against Salter, and did not like to shed blood, but this was the only way he knew to get hanged.

His parents, he said, were Americans, and his father had died in an American asylum. The doctors agree that young Wise has a homicidal mania. In other respects he is apparently sane. His conduct was always quiet and respectful, and his disposition seemingly gentle. Dr. Forbes Winslow, the noted expert in insanity cases, has been engaged to visit the boy in prison and examine into his condition of mind.

SOCIALISM DENOUNCED.

The Rev. R. F. Alsopp at the Episcopal Convention

Thrift Has Its Reward and Enterprise Rarely Fails to Reap Its Proportionate Profits.

Washington, Nov. 19.—The Rev. Rees F. Alsopp, D. D., of Brooklyn, N. Y., opened the second day's proceedings of the Protestant Episcopal church congress with an address on socialism. He rapidly sketched in outline the theories of Henry George and the delightful dream of Bellamy, and pointed out the differences between the most noted advocates of socialistic theories.

Quoting the fable of the man who killed the goose that laid the golden eggs, he urged adhesion to the present system of social economies, and held that if labor forced a change it might kill the goose and lose the golden eggs.

He did not believe that the present conditions were so bad as they were made out to be. Thrift had its reward, enterprise rarely failed to reap its profits. Every one of the socialistic authors were bitterly opposed to investment. George was the leader in that movement. To expect thrift and well-being to result from such theories would be to expect the stream to rise higher than its source.

There were bitter complaints of the present system of wealth distribution, and it was asserted that its tendency was to enrich the few and impoverish the many. Was that true?

Adam Smith, a hundred years ago, had shown that it was not, and the facts of to-day bore him out. It was not true that the rich were getting richer and the poor getting poorer. The laborer of to-day enjoyed luxuries that were not dreamed of by the laborers of a hundred years ago. The tendency of capital was to push down prices, and so help the consumer, who was the laborer. Out of every hundred eggs the goose laid, 90 at least went to the workingman and not more than 10 to the capitalist.

ANARCHISTS ON TOP.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Judge Tuley to-day granted a temporary injunction restraining the police from interfering with any peaceable or orderly meeting which may be held in Thomas Greif's hall on West Lake street.

A MANAGER IN TROUBLE.

He Raised Money to Run His Show in an Improper Manner.

New York, Nov. 19.—Arthur E. Miller, the theatrical manager, was arrested in this city on a charge of obtaining $7,688.89 under false pretenses from Wm. J. Cunningham, a rich Philadelphian.

The money was advanced by Mr. Cunningham to Mr. Miller, it is said, to keep the "Ship Ahoy" company afloat, Miller contracting to procure Cunningham a mortgage on some property he owned near West Superior, Wis., in return.

He failed to do this and Cunningham has now brought criminal action against Miller. The grand jury of Philadelphia county indicted Miller Friday. Miller was taken to Philadelphia last night.

NATURAL GAS TROUBLES.

Upper Sandusky Refuses to Pay for What It Don't Get.

Upper Sandusky, Nov. 19.—(Special)—The Buckeye Natural Gas company's supply is getting uncomfortably low. The city council last evening ordered the trustees to refuse to pay the company's share of the returns until better service is given.

The city and the company have a contract on the halves basis, and it is thought the company is scheming for an increase in rates.

CRIME UPON CRIME.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Dr. A. D. Schroeder, who was recently held to the grand jury by a coroner's jury for causing the death of Mary Murphy, a servant girl employed at French's hotel in Evanston, was found dead in bed at the home of his brother, 326 Loomis street. Dr. Schroeder was held by the coroner on the charge of murder. When the Murphy girl was dying and Schroeder had called in three physicians in a desperate effort to undo the work of an attempted abortion he more than once said he would kill himself if the girl died. There is now little doubt that the doctor has carried out his threat.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Pine Bluff, Ark., Nov. 19.—Fire this morning destroyed two large brick buildings in Main street, occupied by Louthan & Robinson, grocers, and Hurley & Miller's restaurant. Several law offices, located in the buildings, were also burned. Loss, $45,000; insurance, $25,000.

MURDERER CAPTURED.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 19.—Arthur Sloan, who killed his mother and stepfather 12 miles north of this city, October 1, has been captured in an Iowa coal mining district. He confesses the crime and says that bad temper and a quarrel was the cause. There are fierce threats of lynching at Blair, in the next county where he is confined.

KILLED IN A COLLISION.

Shamokin, Pa., Nov. 19.—Two express trains on the Philadelphia & Erie railroad collided at Jersey Shore and Lum. Ray and Harry Bard were instantly killed. Engineer Williams had both legs broken and cannot recover. Twelve passengers were also injured.

HEAVY GALES.

Queenstown, Nov. 19.—The City of Paris was unable to land here on account of the severe storm on the coast. She proceeded direct to Liverpool.

RED AND WHITE GLOBE

Is the Flag of the Junta in Brazil.

Fonseca Well Posted as to the Enemies' Moves.

Nationalists Begin to Think That They Are Being Betrayed by Persons They Supposed Were Friendly to Them.

New York, Nov. 19.—Rio Grande do Sul advices received by the Herald, by way of Buenos Ayres, say that additional towns in that state have gone over to the side of the provisional junta. Among them are Santinoel; San Lius, Parana and Cruzalta.

Five of the government fleet are reported to have given their adhesion to the junta, which has adopted its flag, a white and red globe.

All the states of Brazil are tranquil with the exception of Rio Grande do Sul. The reports of a revolt in Para are untrue.

Spies In the Camp.

Montevideo, Nov. 19.—A dispatch from Rio Grande do Sul says that the insurgent leaders have not got implicit confidence in each other and it is claimed that important secrets as to the insurgent forces, and certain proposed movements, have got almost at once into Fonseca's possession.

It appears that the program of the insurrection included an attack on the important city of Desterro, capital of the province of Santa Catharina. The vessels at the disposal of the new movement were being quietly prepared for the expedition, when it was learned that Fonseca was aware af the intention and had taken steps to frustrate it.

This has caused much disappointment, as it was hoped that the small but prosperous province of Santa Catherina might be induced without difficulty to join Rio Grande.

The war preparations of the latter province continue with great activity and foreign engineers have been sent for from Montevideo to take charge of the construction of defensive works at Rio Grande do Sul and other points.

Soldiers on Patrol.

Buenos Ayres, Nov. 19.—San Luis, the capital of the province of the same name, is reported to be in a ferment. Soldiers patrol the streets and the governor's house has been converted into a military headquarters.

FREE POSTAL DELIVERY.

Bucyrus, O., Nov. 19.—Preliminary arrangements have been made by a government inspector toward establishing a free postal delivery in Bucyrus. the postoffice is to be removed to more commodious quarters, and free delivery will be instituted about January 1.

A Hungry Pack in the Vicinity of St. Paul.

Three Children Killed—Efforts Being Made to Organize a Hunting Party to Exterminate Them.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 19.—The community of New Brighton, 15 miles northwest of St. Paul, has been terrorized for the past few days by a large pack of gray wolves.

The first intimation of the affair came through the visit to St. Paul last night of a committee of men seeking hunters to join in exterminating the wolves.

They report that three children have been killed and devoured by the wolves in the three days.

CANADIAN AFFAIRS.

Bowell Will Not Get the Department of Railroads to Run.

Quebec, Nov. 19.—It is learned on the authority of a leading official of the inter-colonial railway that the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell is not to be given the portfolio of the department of railways, but that it is to be preserved for Lieut.-Gov. Angers, who is to retire immediately after his dismissal of the Mercier cabinet, and that he is to be succeeded by Sir Adolphe Caron, the present minister of militia, who is to be sworn in before the end of the month.

SHORT IN HIS ACCOUNTS.

Charles Wagatha Charged with Embezzling Eight Thousand Dollars.

New Orleans, Nov. 19.—Charles Wagatha, paying and receiving teller of the Traders' bank, is announced as a defaulter in the sum of $8,000.

The shortage was discovered yesterday. Wagatha's whereabouts are unknown, but he is thought to be somewhere in the city. He belongs to an old family of high position. The young man has of late been spending money freely in bad company.

GOV. HOVEY ILL.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 19.—Gov. Hovey and party arrived home from their Mexican trip last night. The governor was taken ill while the party was in Mexico City and the journey was cut short 12 days on this account. He was very weak when the train drew into the city last night but his condition is not alarming.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—At the cattle sale at the stock yards to-day, a herd of short horns belonging to E. J. Thomas of Kentucky was sold. Fifty Marys brought an average of $200 each, seven Dutchesses $300 each and seven Cruikshanks $207 each.

THE ALMY MURDER TRIAL

The Prisoner Breaking Down in Court.

The Mental Strain is Fast Telling on Him.

He Details at Great Length the Love Story That Finally Resulted in the Killing of Pretty Christie Warden.

Plymouth, N. H., Nov. 19.—When the lawyers had finished their skirmish Almy was sworn and testified.

In reply to questions of the attorney general he told of his first coming to the Warden farm in July last year and of making a contract with Warden to work on the farm. The witness, trembling and weeping, affirmed his love for the Warden girls and said: "After Myra and Alice went west the best of the girls remained. Christie was a very quiet girl. I loved her and thought the world of her."

Almy detailed at great length his relations with Christie, giving the impression that they were of the most friendly character and of a reciprocal nature. He said he loved Christie with all his heart and thought if he could have had her she would have led him to a better life. They talked it over and she advised him to get a better education and recommended Hanover, but the lack of funds compelled him to reach the conclusion to make a short cut to professional life. Witness kissed Christie when they parted and she kissed him. She aroused passions in his breast and had Mrs. Warden only spoken one pleasant word to him he would not have been here to-day.

When he heard that Christie was going to the grange he went to the pasture, changed his clothes and after supper went down back of Flint's house and waited for her. Soon she came along with others of the family and went to the grange.

Almy then described the meeting with the Warden party and said that on going over the bars with his arm about Christie's waist they stumbled. Then he heard noises around them. Fanny was screaming and he fired his revolver to keep her back, not thinking to shoot her.

His fall stunned him; his thought was that he must have Christie; there were sounds of voices coming nearer and nearer and Christie was lying on the ground unconscious. In some way his revolver was fired, he did not know how. Then when he saw that Christie was shot he exclaimed: "My God, Christie is dead." He was dazed. He immediately left her and went to the river, then returned to the Warden barn, from which he watched the men who brought the body of Christie to the house.

Almy Must Die.

The trial of Almy for the murder of Christie Warden was concluded to-day, and after arguments had been completed a verdict of "guilty of murder in the first degree" was rendered, and Almy was sentenced to be hanged on the first Tuesday in December, 1892.

MET AN AWFUL FATE.

Roasted to Death in a Bed of Live Coals.

A Boy Subject of Epileptic Fits Falls Into a Roaring Forge While Working Alone.

Columbus, O., Nov. 19.—Louis, the 16-year old son of David Miller, who resides about six miles northeast of this city, has met a peculiarly horrible death.

Mr. Miller is a well-to-do farmer. As he has an extensive farm there is need for considerable repair work about the place, and a blacksmith forge is located about fifty yards from the house.

Young Louis frequently worked about the forge, and assisted his father in making repairs. He was subject to epileptic fits, but it was never feared that any of these would result seriously.

Yesterday morning he was working in the blacksmith shop by himself. His father, with a farm hand, was working in a field near the shop.

About 11 o'clock they had not seen Louis for some time and noticing the odor of burning cloth, they hastened to the shop.

The father entered first and was horrified at the sight presented. His son lay upon the live coals and the fire was literally cooking him alive.

As he had had a fit, he was unable to call out for assistance or help himself. Mr. Miller pulled the boy out of the fire and quenched the flames as soon as possible. He was roasted from head to foot, but remained conscious until he died. Mr. Miller was quite badly burned in attempting to save the boy.

HONORED BY EZETA.

San Salvador, Nov. 19.—United States Minister Pacheco was tendered a grand banquet on Tuesday by President Ezeta.

WATCHING ALEX.

The Czar the Object of Much Attention.

His Recent Moves Have Pointed to War,

And Other Countries Are Preparing to Meet It.

Everybody is Loading Up His Old Rifle.

The Panicky Feeling on the Bourses Only Reflects the Situation as Felt All Over the Countries Where War is Liable to Break Out at Any Time.

Vienna, Nov. 19.—There seems to have been considerable foundation for the depression reported at closing hours yesterday on all the European bourses with the exception of Paris.

The newspapers of the continent this morning are bristling with alarmist rumors, dark references, and sensational intimations.

Prominent among these is the report, said to be well founded, that the Russian government has ordered a reinforcement of 40,000 troops to be dispatched to the frontier and that orders have been issued to largely increase the barrack accommodations at various points along the Russian frontier.

Coupled with this announcement is the report, believed to be correct, that the Austrian government, in addition to the reinforcements recently sent to the Galician frontier, has ordered a large body of troops to be dispatched to strengthen the frontier guards.

Tacked on to these significant statements is the fact that the German war office has ordered a large number of portable tents to be manufactured for the use of the eastern army corps, with the view, it is stated, of sheltering the German troops from the inclemency of the weather in the event of war, this winter, with Russia.

Additional barrack room is also being provided in many towns along the Russo-German frontier and several cavalry corps have been strengthened in the military districts which would have to bear the first onslaughts of the Russian armies.

The opinion previously expressed in these dispatches, that the czar and his advisers are being driven to desperation on account of the famine troubles, internal political difficulties and financial complication, brought to an acute stage by the recent failure to float the new Russian loan, and that war would be a positive relief from these complications, seems to be gaining ground rapidly and may be the cause of much of the present uneasy feeling.

This feeling has been increased by the fact that the Russian minister of war is said to have suddenly abandoned the project of purchasing new smokeless powder and small calibre rifles in France and to have ordered the government ammunition factories to work night and day at the task on hand for some time past, of filling up old Berdan cartridges with smokeless powder.

Finally a number of veteran regiments are being transferred from Finland to the Austrian frontier while the recruits alone are being sent to the Baltic provinces.

In view of these facts it is not astonishing that the bourses are depressed and that the Austrian emperor may, in an unguarded moment, have uttered words which he has since regretted.

The only bright spot in this gloomy political horizon is the announcement which is being commented upon to-day to the effect that Baron Albert de Rothschild has gone to the relief of the French syndicate charged with floating the new Russian loan, and that he has taken 5,000,000 of the unsold script.

This, naturally, in view of the attitude of Hebrew bankers generally towards the Russian government is considered to be a remarkable step.

But it is also recalled that the Rothschilds, when the recent financial panic following the Emperor of Austria's alleged alarmist utterances was at its height, jumped in to the relief of the market by ordering their brokers to make large purchases of stock.

It would thus seem that the Rothschilds are bulls in a very bearish market and Baron Albert Rothschild's action in regard to the Paris syndicate is not having the enlivening effect which it would have had under other circumstances.

LOVE LAUGHED.

Mansfield, O., Nov. 19.—Hiram Morse, of Oakland, Cal., whose suit for the hand and heart and fortune of Mrs. E. D. Norris, a wealthy widow of this city, was noted in dispatches from this city, returned to the city yesterday morning, and the marriage of the couple was solemnized at the residence of the bride by the Rev. D. J. Meese, the ceremony being strictly private.

SCARCITY OF NATURTL GAS.

Stubenville, O., Nov. 19.—Accompanying the unexpected cold snap is a scarcity of natural gas, it being hardly possible to get enough for heating and cooking purposes. There has been an extra drain on the gas supply.

DEATH OF AN EX-CONSUL.

London, Nov. 19.—Mr. William H. Ropes, who, from September 24, 1850, to 1854, represented the United States as consul at St. Petersburg, is dead at Tenby, the well-known watering place on Carmarthen Bay, Wales.

FONSECA'S STORY.

As Told By His Minister to France.

Everything is Peace and Honey in Brazil.

And No Such Thing as Revolution Exists.

Minister De Piza Explains the Situation.

New Elections Are to be Held and the Dictator's Friends Are Confident They Will Be Successful at the Polls—An Interesting Story.

Paris, Nov. 19.—M. De Piza, Brazilian minister to France, was asked to give a correspondent an explanation of the causes, direct and indirect, which brought about the present state of "purely local" trouble in Brazil. In reply, M. De Piza said that after the fall of Dom Pedro when the constituencies were summoned to elect a new congress the assembly maintained that it was called together simply to construct a constitution and that once the constitution had been decided upon it should cease to be a constituent congress and would vote simply upon the budget.

The constitution, M. De Piza added, was voted some months ago, and therefore the congress, in conformity with the terms of the electoral convocation, from that moment ceased to be a constituent assembly, and became a legislative assembly.

Now, the Brazilian minister explained, this legislative assembly by an act of unconstitutional usurpation, decided to suppress the right of veto bestowed upon the president by the constituent assembly and voted by the same body.

The constitution gives the chamber the right to pass a law over the president's veto, provided the measure is supported by a two-thirds vote of the members present. Thus the congress was free to pass the law against which Marshal Da Fonseca gave his veto, if only it could secure a two-thirds vote in its support.

But, M. De Piza continued, the congress, in voting a law suppressing the right to veto, acted in violation of its own constitution, and unconstitutionally, and therefore not only is Da Fonseca not a dictator, but it is in defense of the constitution that he has dissolved congress. So that it is absolutely incorrect to compare his action with that of Balmaceda. In the latter case it was congress which defended the constitution and which thus finally became victorious; whereas in Brazil it is Da Fonseca who defends the constitution against its own authors.

In another portion of the interview, M. De Piza declared that there was not a Brazalian throughout Brazil who would suffer for a single day the idea of a dictatorship. The minister claimed that martial law had not been proclaimed throughout Brazil, but only in Rio Janeiro. Continuing, M. De Piza made the following explanation:

"The governors of the provinces were elected after the fall of Dom Pedro and are republicans and indeed there are no monarchists in the provinces. There has been no necessity to proclaim martial law in the provinces because no monarchists exist there, and it is only a protection against the monarchists of Rio Janeiro that martial law has been proclaimed. Martial law has been adopted in the capital in anticipation of a possible attempt to re-establish monarchy.

"When Dom Pedro fell," also said M. De Piza, "I was among those who had been active in his overthrow. What did we do? We only went to Da Fonseca and said to him: 'You are the head of the army, and hold in your hand the army and navy. We wish to know whether the army and navy are republican. Personally we have no dislike to Dom Pedro. He is a very honest and well-intentioned man, but he is weak and has no roots in the country, and lacking authority, he really does nothing for his country's good. Now we came to ask whether, if we proclaim that Dom Pedro has ceased to govern, we shall have to fight against the army and navy armed in his behalf.'

"To this Da Fonseca," M. De Piza further explained, "said that there was not a soldier or a sailor who would raise a finger in Dom Pedro's behalf. Then quietly, without the slightest necessity of fighting, we proclaimed Dom Pedro's fall.

"He was informed of the decision, and knowing perfectly well that there was no use in seeking the support of any armed power in Brazil, he abdicated without resistance.

"I say all this only to show you that as yet there is no revolution in Brazil; that the army and navy are with the president; that there is not a dictator; that he remains, after having in conformity with the constitution, dissolved the congress—or, if you will, by a sort of coup d'etat—the recognized and loyally-obeyed head of the country, supported by both the army and navy.

"If congress imagined that it was supported by either the army or navy it might act as Chili did, it might seek to take the army or navy, or both, and then fight against Da Fonseca, but not a soldier or sailor would go with it.

"The troops remain absolutely faithful to the republic because they are republicans, and intend to maintain the government of the republic, encouraged in their attitude of fidelity by the fear of a monarchial menace lurking behind an eventual success for the congress. I am bound to ask you to declare that Marshal Da Fonseca is not and cannot be a dictator; that a man of his age, ill and poor, who has throughout his life been honest and patriotic, has neither the will nor the power, nor any kind of motive to play this role, or to menace the existence of the republic.

"The budget has been nearly voted. In any case, this is not the first time countries have paid taxes without having completely voted the items. It has happened in England as well as elsewhere. Morover, Brazil, in order to avoid the fluctuation of the exchange, has deposited money enough in London to anticipate all expenses abroad for nine months to come—that is to say, up to July, 1892, and you may be sure that the taxes in Brazil itself will be quite sufficient for the purposes of the country, the more so as the budget has a surplus of about 60,000,000 or 70,000,000 francs.

"And rest assured that the elections will soon come on; that they will be preceded by no disturbances, as all the forces are in the hands of the president; and that there is not the slightest danger of our seeing a repetition of the recent events in Chili."

Here the correspondent asked, "What would the president do if the new congress were the same as the one just dissolved?"

To this question M. De Piza, with a smile, replied: "Ah, you need not worry: the elections will turn in favor of the government."

It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES.

Meeting of the Ramabai Circle—Coming Events.

Mrs. Rose L. Segur entertained the regular monthly meeting of the Ramabai circle yesterday afternoon. Mrs. E. M. Pike presided in the absence of the president, and Mrs. Cornelia Shaw acted as secretary.

The treasurer stated that the annual donation of membership fees had been sent by her to Boston for transmission to India by the chief circle of the United States. It was decided to renew the subscription for the Lend a Hand magazine.

No direct news having been received since the last meeting from Ramabai's school, the meeting studied sociological and domestic conditions of the orient, and their bearing upon girl children and women.

Mrs. M. B. Eck read numerous clippings from current East Indian literature, portraying the gross abuses under which one-sixth of the womanhood of the earth is crushed, especially in the horrors of infant marriages and their consequences. Mrs. Pike spoke of the social customs among the Parsees, who treat as outcasts all unmarried women.

The work of the medical mission was next considered. Women physicians find great opportunity for the practice of their profession among the high caste ladies, who never receive medical care unless from one of their own sex. Many East Indian women are now studying medicine, and native physicians will in a few years be able to greatly alleviate the physical sufferings of their sisters. Extracts were also read from Dr. Ryder's "Child Wives of India."

The meeting adjourned to December 16, to meet with Mrs. Frances J. Sumner, 721 Prouty avenue.

The Women's Colloquial club meets tomorrow afternoon in the Law Kindergarten rooms, Central Congregational church, from 4 to 5:30 o'clock. Mrs. Judge Bentley gives the essay. Subject, "Expression." All women invited.

Supper will be served to-morrow evening from 6 to 8 o'clock at the dairy maids' festival at Pythian castle, by the ladies of the Unitarian and Universalist churches. Friends invited.

Dr. Charles Cravens' lecture on Hamlet, with readings, in Memorial hall annex Saturday evening, will be attended by many members of the Toledo literary societies.

The committee on by-laws for the Day Nursery circle of the King's Daughters is holding a meeting this afternoon with Mrs. Mary C. Daniels, 717 Huron street.

THE FACTIONS ARE AT WAR.

There is Little Hope of a Peaceful Termination.

The Alliance and the F. M. B. A. Are Rapidly Getting to the Point Where Union is Impossible.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 19.—Thus far future prospects of the alliance have not been greatly improved by the Indianapolis meeting. In fact, quite the contrary seems to be the case. The two great organizations, the alliance and the F. M. B. A., are no nearer amalgamation, the third party movement has brought on a bitter factional fight in each, and there is absolute certainty of a split on the subtreasury question.

But these are not the only stumbling blocks in the way of the alliance. The McCune and anti-McCune factions are making serious charges against each other and the finances of both orders are running very low.

This last feature has resulted in a great deal of dissatisfaction and contention already. In the alliance the treasury is so low that it will be impossible to defray expenses of the delegates, so McCune offered a resolution cutting down the representation two-fifths and it was adopted.

In the F. M. B. A. it is found that many states are delinquent, Ohio being among the number. A resolution was passed not to admit the Ohio delegates until the delinquency was made good. The Ohio delegates would not pay up and after a long wrangle the operation of the resolution was suspended in their case.

Thus far everything is chaotic in the highest degree. There is no enthusiasm, so little in fact that the open meeting was not held for lack of attendance.

The Business Agents' association today adopted the Roachdale system of selling for cash instead of credit and dividing profits with the patrons, the alliance stores to be supplied as heretofore by the Commercial Union.

The Reform Press association decided to establish an advertising agency in New York for the exclusive benefit of reform papers, of which there are now 1,360. It also decided to establish a plate printing house. The location of this last institution was not fixed, but it will probably be at St. Louis or Cincinnati.

GENERAL K. OF L. OFFICERS

Visit the Toledo Manual Training School.

T. V. Powderly on the Relation of Manual Training to the Labor Problem—The Last Representatives Leaving.

At the time the representatives of the K. of L. convention visited the manual training school last week, some of the general officers were prevented by business from accompanying them. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Macomber took Mr. Powderly and Messrs. Devlin and Wright, of the general executive board, through the institution, and to a Bee these gentlemen later expressed their satisfaction that the opportunity had been afforded them to visit this model school of the country.

Mr. Powderly said: "I am delighted with everything I saw; with the system and with its workings. I only wish every public school in the land had such an annex attached to some grade in its course. And I think the time will come when it will be so. The principle is right, and it is too important to be overlooked. Toledo has the start of other cities, that is all, and no doubt your citizens are justly proud of it. This is not only a model school, but that it is directly a part of your high-school and grammar-school course is to be commended. This is in the interest of all the people.

"We have long said that the public schools are the hope of the country, the foundation of good and free government. I believe that if the manual training school system was operative in connection with all the schools, and if every child took advantages of its teachings, 25 years from now labor organizations would be no longer needed. The labor problem would be solved because the children of to-day would be the men and women then and through the training received they would be so far intelligent and independent they could care for themselves, and command a just price for their labors.

"In connection with your school in Toledo, as I said to Mr. Macomber yesterday, I should like to see some out-door work taught. I mean a garden attachment where the first principles of the cultivation of fruits, flowers and vegetables might be taught. You are teaching how a potato should be cooked. Why not take the same pupil to the garden in the spring, and show him or her how to plant for a potato crop and how to cultivate it? Now when a town-bred young man gets married and buys a house with a little ground, if he wants to raise his table vegetables on the ground he doesn't know in the spring whether to plant seeds or vegetables, whether it is the eye of a potato or a whole one he should put in the ground.

"However your manual training school as conducted is excellent, excellent. I wish every city and town in the United States had one like it."

Mr. Powderly and Mr. Hayes leave for Philadelphia to-day; Mr. Devlin returns to Detroit; Mr. A. W. Wright goes to Chicago to adjust some Knights of Labor business there; Mr. Cavanaugh returned to Cincinnati last night.

At the farmers' meeting in Indianapolis this week are several who were representatives here. James A. Wright, of the clothing cutters, will go to that city today to ask that he may be allowed to explain the Rochester lock-out to the farmers.

AFTER THE THIEVES.

The Police Department Have an Eye

On the Gang Which Has Been Working the City—Arrests Last Night—Others Bound Over.

As winter approaches the tramps and sneak thieves begin to get in lively work, especially on overcoats and clothing, and it is very unsafe to leave any such articles lying carelessly about or to leave the front doors open. The police are kept busy with this class of cases, and have been doing exceedingly good work, as but few of the many articles stolen have not been recovered and a score of petty thieves have been sent to the workhouse recently.

Chief O'Dwyer is making a great crusade against the tramps and thugs who always congregate in the city during the winter, and he is being ably seconded by the detectives and patrolmen. As a result, Toledo is becoming a rather hot stopping place for these floating citizens.

As has been previously stated in the Bee, the Market Space is a great rendezvous for these toughs, and last evening a raid was made on Turner's saloon and eight men were arrested. They are about as hard-looking a lot as can be seen in a long time. They gave their names as Thomas Morrel, Frank Burk, Tim Jackson, Charles Foster, Thomas More, R. A. Raymor, John Martin and James Kelly. None of them are residents of Toledo, but they have been hanging around for some time and are suspected of a number of thefts. The police determined to break up the gang and the raid was the result.

Some of the fellows will be tried in police court on various charges, and others will be escorted out of the city and warned never to return.

The second hand stores along Perry and St. Clair streets are where these sneak thieves dispose of most of their stolen goods, and these places are closely watched. If a suspicious character is found trying to dispose of goods for which he can give no good account, he is promptly locked up and nine times out of ten an owner is soon found for the goods and they prove to have been stolen. A case of this kind occurred yesterday when Mr. Munson of the Y. M. C. A. reported that his overcoat had been stolen out of the Y. M. C. A. rooms. He was at once shown a coat which had been found on a suspicious character arrested by Detective Carew several hours before, and Mr. Munson identified the coat as the one stolen. The thief gave his name as Thomas Brown and has been hanging around the Y. M. C. A. rooms for some time.

On Monday evening a new overcoat, a pair of pants and a pair of overshoes, belonging to Louis F. Edwards, were stolen from his room, and on Tuesday night a coat and vest were stolen from the residence of R. A. Brinkerhoff on Ontario street. A young man named Harris Devenport was caught trying to dispose of Mr. Brinkerhoff's coat and Edwards' pants. In police court this morning he was bound over to the common pleas court on a charge of burglary and larceny, with bail fixed at $500. Mr. Edwards' overcoat has not yet been recovered.

There have been a number of other cases and the police officials are determined to prevent, as far as possible, this kind of thieving and so far have been doing good work.

BATTLE WITH BEARS.

Hunters Have a Lively Time in the Woods.

They Captured a Cub and Had to Fight for Their Lives to Get Away with It.

Helfenstein, Pa., Nov. 19.—John Crawson, Samuel Wetherly, Richard Specht, Frank and Robert Minn and Robert James, six farmers living near here, had a terrible fight with two bears which they encountered in the mountain Tuesday while hunting.

They discovered a cub playing near a cave, which they captured, and were departing, when the mother and father of the cub made their appearance.

A terrible hand-to-hand conflict followed, during which the hunters were terribly torn and lacerated before they could bring their Winchesters into play.

James was caught by the mother bear and so badly injured that he will die.

Wetherly's right arm was torn from the socket and Specht had an eye gouged out. The others were more or less hurt.

IMPORTANT DECISION

Of City Solicitor Read on the Gas Question.

City Institutions Have Prior Right Over Private Consumers—The Question Comes Up at a Joint Meeting of Boards of Gas Trustees and Water Works.

It will be somewhat startling news to many that the board of natural gas trustees is compelled under the law to supply municipal institutions before giving gas to the individual citizens, and that supplying the latter is only a secondary consideration.

This forenoon the trustees of the board of natural gas and the water works met at the gas office to consult on the advisability of further supplying the water works with gas.

"Have you anything to say why the gas should not be cut off?" asked President Parsons.

"Yes, we have," began Water Works Trustee L. K. Parks. He continued to give the circumstances under which the water works secured gas. Instead of getting gas free, as provided for by law, the water works trustees advanced the money to lay the line and also paid $1,000 in advance for the gas. The gas trustees, he said, had neither a moral nor legal right to cut off the gas. No arrangements had been made to secure a substitute fuel, and to cut the gas off now meant simply to leave the city without water. The water works were supplying the city institutions free.

In reply to Mr. Parsons Mr. Parks said the water works should not be asked to give way to private consumers. His position was that the city institutions should be supplied first.

Mr. Parsons said the city simply meant the citizens—the inhabitants—and he thought they were entitled to gas first of all.

Mr. Parks said coal could not be supplied for the reason that the board could not buy over $500 worth unless first advertised.

City Solicitor Read said the board could buy any amount of coal or anything else. It was only when a question of labor was involved that it was necessary to advertise.

Mr. Parks said he did not agree with Mr. Read on that point.

Mr. Read gave it as his opinion that it was the duty of the gas trustees to supply the corporation institution before supplying either factories or private consumers. The law says the enterprise is for public purposes. It was the great argument used in all the litigation that the gas was for public purposes. The gas plant was primarily a municipal enterprise.

In reply to a question Mr. Read said the board of gas trustees must supply public buildings before supplying private consumers.

Dr. Jones asked if Mr. Read had considered the sanitary laws of the state in giving this decision.

Mr. Read said there might be occasion where sanitary circumstances compelled the board to give to one man before another, but not to one man over a public institution. If gas ran very short and the health of the city was threatened, then it became a matter of ethics rather than of law.

Replying to Mr. Backus, Mr. Read said the board could not discriminate against individuals, but classes of individual had privileges which others had not.

Mr. Parks said the law ordered certain discriminations among classes. The class that claimed priority was city institutions, next came the private consumer and the private institutions followed.

Mr. Backus asked if it was not compulsory for the board to supply all private consumers alike.

Mr. Read could not see how there could be any discrimination.

Mr. Parks said the $3,000 advanced by his board was looked upon as a gift, as the water works were entitled to gas free.

Mr. Backus remarked the difference in the price of coal and that of gas about squared that account.

In reply to a direct question Mr. Read said the water works had prior rights over the private individual, and he read Judge Jackson's decision on the subject, which bore a similar interpretation. If the act is robbed of its chief object, the supplying of gas to public institutions, then it is robbed of its chief support, and it would be declared unconstitutional.

Mr. Parsons said the question was, law or no law, whether the water works or the individual should be supplied. He for one would not be responsible for the decision or for changing the policy of the board.

Mr. Backus made the point that the water works reached more citizens than the gas department, and more people were interested in the water works.

Mr. Parsons said if no other fuel could be supplied he would agree with Mr. Backus.

Mr. Backus said he favored obeying the law and giving the public institutions gas first.

Mr. Parsons said he didn't think the decision was either good law or good sense. He did not believe in cutting off 6,000 consumers in order to save the water works from paying for a couple of men to shovel coal.

Mr. Greene said in regard to the advancing of the money by the water works that the proposition came from the water works trustees, and he thought the motive was such as placed the gas trustees under no great obligation.

Mr. Parks asked if Mr. Reed could not suggest a way out of the difficulty.

Mr. Read replied that if the water works did not demand the gas the gas trustees would not be obliged to furnish it.

Mr. Parsons said law or no law he was going to stand by the people as against public institutions.

Mr. Parks said just talk was the veriest rot. The board had no discretion but to give the water works gas.

Mr. Greene said the position of the board of water works was that on and after December 1 the board was obliged to give the water works gas free.

Mr. Parsons offered a resolution to the effect that, owing to the large demand from private consumers, the manager be instructed to notify the board of water works that gas would be cut off on and after December 1.

Mr. Greene seconded the motion.

Mr. Parks said, if such a position could be maintained, the courts would decide the bonds unconstitutional.

Dr. Jones read the law on the subject, and could not find anything that obliged the board to give the water works free gas. He said the well pressure had gone down from 250 to 150 pounds and the line did not carry over one-third of what it did formerly. New wells were being drilled, and the probability was there would be a better supply soon. There was a great deal of sickness in the city, and if the board continued to supply the water works the mortality in the Fifth and Ninth wards alone would be increased fully 20 per cent. If the water works board wanted to take this responsibility, then let it go ahead. The blow would be struck at women and children, and he considered it an outrage. He moved as an amendment that on and after Monday noon the gas be cut off.

Mr. Greene told how the board started in under discouraging disadvantages to pipe the city. The private consumer had advanced the money for the gas that he now was receiving, and was it right, was it fair, that he should be cut off and a public institution that could use coal be given gas free? The fact is the city has not gas enough for both parties.

Mr. Parks stated if the city solicitor said the water works board ought to relinquish its right he was willing to do so.

Mr. Read said the law did not oblige the water works to use gas.

The resolution as amended carried, Messrs. Greene, Jones and Parsons voting aye, Mr. Backus no.

ABOUT THE RAILROADS.

Wheeling & Lake Erie's Extensive Improvements.

The T. & O. C. Makes Some Changes—Sketch of a Prominent Railroad Man—Other Points.

"We have made more improvements and put our line in better shape this season than it has been in four years," remarked Chief Engineer Wilson, of the Wheeling & Lake Erie, to a Bee. "We have been ballasting, renewing and laying new steel where needed from one end of the line to the other. There has been a steam shovel and three engines at work all summer filling trestles. We have put in over 10 miles of new steel. It is the only way to keep the line for business, for the Wheeling & Lake Erie stands second among the Ohio coal lines, and the traffic is simply immense."

Only First Class Fares.

The Lake Shore notified all connections in the city by circular to-day that for train No. 4, known as the New York mail, nothing but first class tickets would be accepted.

T. & O. C. Changes.

The T. & O. C. have made several changes in its schedule. Train No. 6 has been changed to No. 10, and leaves at 7:40 a. m. instead of 7:35. This change is made to make connection with the Pennsylvania at Dunkirk. Train No. 5 has been changed to No. 9, and arrives at 6:35 p. m. instead of 6:40. Train No. 1 arrives at 9:05 a. m. instead of 9.

Martin L. Crowell was born in New York city, and educated from the public schools of that city, and afterwards took a thorough collegiate course. After leaving college he took a position with S. G. and G. C. Ward, American agents for Baring Bros., London, and by his industry and strict attention to business was soon appointed cashier, which position he held until the dissolution of the firm in 1883.

Mr. Crowell then turned his attention to newspaper work, and hustled with the boys on the New York Times from

HE WAS A BURGLAR.

Theodore White, who was arrested here a few weeks ago on suspicion and afterwards taken to Hillsdale, Mich., to answer a charge of burglary, has confessed to having burglarized two stores in that city, and was sentenced to three years imprisonment.

LAFAYETTE STREET BRIDGE.

Harbor Master Skeldon has commenced building a temporary approach to the Lafayette street bridge. The huge pile of dirt that was excavated from around the sewer is still in the street, however, and Street Commissioner Bower is unable to remove it for lack of funds.

ARE AT COLUMBUS.

Hon. Frank H. Hurd and Mr. John F. Kumler went to Columbus last evening and to-day will make arguments before the supreme court in the quo warranto case brought to test the constitutionality of the law of 1890, empowering electric street railroad companies in Toledo to occupy the tracks of other companies.

HACK DRIVER SENT UP.

William Root, formerly a hack driver for the Transfer company, and who was tried in police court on four charges of embezzling money from that company, was sentenced this morning. He was discharged on two charges, but found guilty on the other two and fined $10, costs and 10 days in each case.

FOR STEALING COAL.

Joseph Oris and John Iles were arrested yesterday for stealing coal from cars in the Wheeling & Lake Erie yards. Both are Hungarians, and as one of them cannot speak any English and the other but little, it was necessary to postpone their trial in police court until an interpreter can be found. The case will come up to-morrow.

REVIVAL AT DELTA.

Word comes to Toledo that a revival is in progress at Delta in the M. E. church, which is resulting thus far in good success. Twenty-three persons have been converted and the meetings are still in progress. Rev. J. W. Donnan, who at the recent conference in this city, was located at his own request, is conducting the effort, and anticipates a more far-reaching work than has yet been accomplished. The pastor, Rev. Dr. Newton, is of course aiding with his usual well-directed labors.

FOR STEALING HATS.

William Morey and Thomas Cunningham were tried in police court this morning for stealing several hats from in front of Studer & Sons' store on Summit street. They had sold one of the hats in a second hand store and told the old story about meeting an unknown man on the street who sold them the hat for 15 cents. This gag didn't go and the men were fined $15 and costs and 10 days each. These fellows were arrested at the Helping Hand Mission yesterday.

BUDTZ ENTERS SUIT.

In common pleas court to-day Christian Budtz began proceedings against Theodore C. Greather to recover $10,000 damages. He alleges that Theodore C. Greather, to injure him in his good name and reputation, and to bring him into public odium and contempt, falsely and maliciously said "Budtz stole six or seven thousand dollars." He further alleges that the defendant further said "Budtz embezzled funds of the company," meaning the Toledo Sienna and Mineral Paint company, of which corporation the plaintiff was president.

HAD A NARROW ESCAPE.

Harmon Cooper and wife, of Crystal Lake, Mich., arrived in the city last evening, on their way to visit relatives in Massillon. The couple registered at the New York house, and were assigned a room. This morning Mr. Cooper and his wife were discovered in an unconscious condition, and it required considerable effort to revive them. By some means the gas had been turned out and then turned on, which allowed escape during all of the night. Mr. O'Gorman secured a physician and as a result of their labors the Michiganders were able to proceed on their journey this afternoon. They had a narrow escape, however.

THE MACCABEES.

Maumee tent of the Knights of the Maccabees has of late made rapid strides to be the largest lodge of any organization in the city. In spite of the political excitement of the past month the members of this tent have taken a great interest in the order and have worked with zeal to increase the membership. There seems to be a strife as to who will bring in the largest number of applications at each review. Some have reported as many as 10 applications at a single meeting. At the last one a large number of new members were initiated and a still larger number is expected at the review to-night. At the present rate of increase Maumee tent will have a membership of more than two hundred by January, 1892. A uniformed tent will soon be organized.

MAJOR BROWN HAS A WORD FOR THE CADETS.

To the Editor: As one of many admirers of Toledo's "Pets," the Cadets, permit me through your columns to speak of their novel and most excellent entertainment, "The Cartridge Box."

The actors may be "amateurs," but they are better than a majority of professionals, and every cartridge exploded at Memorial hall to-night will disclose a volcano of fun! Our citizens should see to it that there is not standing room this closing night. E. O. BROWN.

HOME MISSIONS.

Ninth Annual Convention for the Toledo District in Session.

The first session of the Ninth Annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of Toledo District, was held in the Third street M. E. church, East Toledo, last evening. There was a good attendance. Devotional exercises were conducted by Mrs. S. L. Roberts, followed by an address of welcome from Miss Mattie Barlow and Rev. S. L. Roberts, of East Toledo, and a response by Mrs. Case, of Bowling Green, who spoke for Mrs. T. N. Bardull, of Port Clinton, who was unable to attend the convention.

A platform meeting was held, addressed by Rev. S. D. Hutsinpiller, Rev. A. J. Fish and Rev. Parker P. Pope, who spoke on various phases of the work, its relation to the church, its out-look for future usefulness, as well as its past work.

This morning the sessions were resumed, when the following program was taken up: Devotional exercises, Mrs. G. H. Priddy, of Auburndale; reading of minutes for the past year by Mrs. M. H. Davis, which were approved.

The following delegates were then introduced by the president: Mrs. Watkins and Mrs. Faws, of Bowling Green.

Committees were then appointed by the president as follows: Nominations—Mesdames Munson, Faws, Mixer, Wickenden, Priddy, Worts and Phillips; finance, Mesdames Roberts, Watkins, and Myers; resolutions and place of next meeting, Mrs. Scoles and Mrs. Munson.

A letter was then read by Mrs. Worts from Mrs. Chapman, formerly of Toledo, now at Athens, Tenn., where she has established a home and school for poor white girls. Mrs. Chapman states that the home is a grand success; "That we do not realize the extreme poverty of our poor southern sisters, and their desire to learn, and the extreme necessity of such a home for them." The home is filled with these girls, and more are begging to come and will be allowed to do so as soon as a place and food can be provided for them. Mrs. Chapman asks if it is not possible for each society in Ohio to give $50 a year for the support of these girls, who are fitting themselves for teachers and for missionary work. Donations of any kind from the societies would be acceptable at the "Ritter Home," Athens, Tenn.

Miss Edith Philips gave an interesting paper on young ladies' work, and Mrs. A. Watkins gave a paper on Indian work.

This afternoon Mrs. R. Heller conducted the devotional exercise. The election of officers will take place and following papers given: Emigrant work, Mrs. Gozzard, of Tiny; Mormon work, Mrs. Munson; Talk, Mite Boxes, Rev. Mrs. Scoles, of Bowling Green; Report Juvenile Band and and Mother's Jewels, Edith Philips; Report of committees; Report from district auxiliaries.

GROUND DOWN BY TAXATION,

Servians Are About Ready to Rebel

Against the Payment of Two Million Francs to Milan—The King Holds a Club Over Their Head.

Vienna, Nov. 19.—A dispatch from Belgrade says that great discontent exists with the terms granted by the regency to ex-King Milan, and that the populace are so aroused that an outbreak is feared.

The poorer Servians, ground down by taxation, regard the 2,000,000 francs paid to Milan as an outrageous extravagance.

Milan, it is said, threatened to re-marry Natalie, come back to Belgrade and let Natalie have her own way in punishing the men who had driven her out of Servia.

This was not an empty threat, as Milan is a favorite with the army, which would doubtless have obeyed his commands.

The regents therefore yielded to Milan's terms, after an ineffectual protest, and hereafter he is to have 2,000,000 francs a year for leaving Servia entirely alone.

As the ministry is now seldom able to make both ends meet some new method will have to be found to raise the money for Milan to spend in luxurious idling in Paris.

You can always tell where Charley Foster is in politics.

It is now explained why Gen. H. V. Boynton, the veteran Washington correspondent of the Commercial Gazette, was requested to resign. He favors the re-election of Senator Sherman.

The Philadelphia Record is glad each party is accusing the other of election frauds in that state. Honors are easy and so it hopes they will unite in demand for the secret ballot.

The president will not pull the reciprocity string in on hides, at the bidding of the agricultural Rusk; he daren't do it. He wants to be as good a free trader as Mr. Blaine and Mr. Blaine isn't troubling himself about hides, except his own.

Of course Gov. McKinley knows that his prospective private secretary is doing his level best to defeat John Sherman. In a measure that commits the administration to Mr. Foraker. "The plot thickens and the villain still pursues her."

"The man who would make the best secretary of war is the one who can do most to promote success of the republican party in some doubtful state."—Globe-Democrat.

That is the republican way. The efficiency of the army is of minor consideration.

Minister-to-Italy Porter came hustling home with his family and the old Mafia war-ghost stalked abroad for a brief interval. Reassurance comes from Washington: no ghost at all but only a presidential bee in the official bonnet. A fine assortment of candidates are getting in line.

John Sherman says positively that he will not object to the seating of his distinguished colleague, Senator Brice. Such talk displays the courage and fighting qualities of the Sherman family. Now what say the rag tag and bob tails to this bold position of Ohio's senior senator?

The evening organ forgets itself and mentions "a manufacturing concern in Columbus which doesn't owe its prosperity to the tariff" in which Col. Brice is interested. It forgets that yesterday it asserted that Brice had no interests in the state and even the family tea-pot had been carried to New York. But that's a way it has.

The size of the Blade's sincerity about non-partisanship in municipal boards is betrayed by its expression last evening concerning the newly-appointed park commissioners. After correcting itself for its error of the night before it goes on to say that "Mayor Emmick is a member of the board, ex officio, and will have the casting vote, thus putting the republicans in the majority." As if votes on parks must have politics in them.

Official election returns from Kansas show an increase of ten per cent. in the People's party vote over that in the state a year ago. The vote shows increase in counties where it was small, and decrease where it was large last year. This statement upon authority invalidates a great deal of editorial crowing and calculation in a great many newspaper organs of the kind that have no use for the farmer, except that he pay his taxes and vote the republican ticket.

Because William Dean Howells says "the short story is to be the story of the future" is no reason why it is trut A story too short is as insipid as one too long is tiresome. Writers go from one fashion extreme to the other. If a story isn't particularly good the briefer it is the better. The best short stories in current literature are found in the news columns of the daily paper, records of actual happenings. No fiction can approach them—excepting such as reporters see fit to embellish them with.

The Toronto Empire says, the Chilian minister and President Harrison have kissed and made up and the war cloud has drifted back to Europe where it belongs. "The lives of a couple of sailors involved count for little," says our neighbor, for "citizens are counted like dollars by our friends—in piles, not as individuals." You just treadon our Uncle Sam's coat skirts with your old hob nails, you spiteful Canuck and learn how you'll get counted. We'll annex your blasted old country and pay your debts first you know.

This is "farmers' week" in Indianapolis. A half dozen different societies will attempt to unite and affiliate. The meeting is a large one with the west enthusiastically represented. The high-tax organs give very different attention from that which was vouchsafed them a few weeks ago when they saw fit to orate and resolve. They have pronounced the farmers' movement dead, in their editorial columns, and jocosely assume to believe that this meeting is but "a wriggle of the tail at sundown."

IN ONE MAN'S LIFETIME.

A single hundred years is but a brief space of time—ten times ten years, and yet what changes in the life of a nation it may compass. At the "Old Men's Home," in Philadelphia, yesterday, John Stevenson, with a party of kin and friends, and the omnipresent newspaper reporter, celebrated the completion of his hundredth year. He has perfect health, walked erect, shaved himself for the occasion and passed his plate up a third time at the banquet table. And what has the lifetime of this one man compassed?

In 1789 the territory of the United States comprised a narrow strip of land extending along the Atlantic from Maine to the northern boundary of Florida. We have studied in our history books how the bold and adventurous pioneers pushed their way into the unexplared wilderness on every side; read of the journeys through swamp and thicket and over rugged mountain, by ox-team, and of the lonely cabins in the unhewn forest. To-day we fly on the wings of the wind from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the snow-bound hills of the Pine Tree state to the tropical clime of the Rio Grande; over thousands of miles of blooming gardens and fertile farms, over untold wealth of mines of silver and gold—in brief, over the finest expanse of territory on the habitable globe.

When this old man of Philadelphia wanted to visit his cousins who had emigrated to the far away land of Pennsylvania or Maryland he went by horseback and coach, and it took weeks for the letter saying he had arrived there in safety, to reach the anxious friends at the home hearthstone. Now he would ring the telephone bell and say, "Good morning, Ma." To-day we sit at our breakfast muffins and coffee and read who were in the coaching party that went through the forest of Fontainebleau yesterday.

It was thirty-six years after the first inauguration of Washington before the wonderful Erie canal was completed. As late as 1835 there were in the United States only a little more than 1,000 miles of railway. The gross value of railways in the United States in 1889 is put down at $20,557,608,032.

When this old man was young the cobbler's bench and hand loom were in the pioneer's cottage, and his own hand fashioned the hand-rake and ax-helve. And is this the same world to-day, with its factories and machinery, its electricity; its mile-a-minute on land and its six-days across the sea?

We are fond of referring to the "good old times" when the family Bible, Pilgrims' Progress, Baxter's Saints' Rest and the "almanack" were the only books in the most favored homes. To-night you can buy the news of the whole world on the street for two cents.

The religious and humanitarian world has kept pace with the progress of material development. The days of witch craft and schism are dim in the past. To the youth of the present the record of them reads like unreality and fiction. Never before were the religious denominations so near each other, almost within hand-clasp.

All this and ten thousand more of wonderful accomplishments that branch out in thought from the brief mention made, one lifetime has compassed. These are wholesome thoughts for us as the Thanksgiving season approaches. What a grand heritage is ours—"this bounteous birthright of the free." The greatest variety of soil and climate in any country under the heavens—the gulf stream and the Pacific equatorial current shedding their warmth and humidity on our favored lands; the suns and rains falling like benedictions on our limitless acres of fruitfulness—what has human intelligence, hand in hand with bountiful Nature, accomplished for our beloved country in the brief space of one man's lifetime?

THE TAX INQUISITORS.

The Bee is in receipt of the following communication on the subject of the tax spotting business that is, and has long been, in progress in Toledo:

To the Editor:—A citizen and tax payer in the interest of fair play and justice desires to protest against the attacks being made upon Messrs. Morganthaler and Warwick in connection with the tax inquisition, so-called. I learn that those gentlemen are only getting 7 per cent of the 25 per cent allowed for doing the work. It seems to me an unreasonable amount for doing the work. I also learn that the others who are interested in the divide would not do the spotting by reason of the character of the work, and because they expected to remain here and wished to stand well in the community. Furthermore, Mr. Editor, I would much wish to know who they are that are getting the balance. TAX PAYER.

This communication is in the nature of a pointer, and there may be rich developments connected with this tax inquisition. It is hinted that one or two prominent citizens who lobbied Morganthaler's contract through the board, which consists of the auditor, treasurer and commissioners, stand in with the spotters in all their deals. The business as now worked in Toledo amounts to a blackmailing scheme in many instances, and hush money is frequently taken and the so-called interest in the tax payers of Lucas county is thrown to the dogs. Our county officials should investigate this subject for themselves, and, if possible, they should abrogate the contract which is doing no good, but on the contrary, a positive injury to Toledo.

Relations are getting strained quite unanimously, if dispatches, domestic and foreign are to be credited. Harrison wanted Blaine to say he would not be a candidate for the presidency; that he only wanted to work the reciprocity racket under him (Harrison), and Mr. Blaine failed to make any such casual remark. Hence, the strain. Then Foraker, he called on the Washington powers-that-be, without invitation, and could get no comfort and before his coat tails were fairly clear of the office door, Secretary Foster proclaimed for Sherman; another straining of relations. Then Foraker was mad enough at the whole posse to say that Mr. Blaine confessed to him that he would take the presidential nomination with him (Foraker) or any man except McKinley on the ticket, and that he (Blaine) preferred him (Foraker) to Sherman. Denial from Blaine is over-due, and upon this Foraker's revision depends. Go on with your fun, gentlemen. These "strained relations" will relax their tension when the democrats get in their good work.

A Chicago critic writing of the beautiful Bellini, romances thus:

"There's nothing like Bellini to carry one back forty years," said a white-haired old man, leaning over a dainty old lady, with a faint flush of pleasure on her faded cheeks, like the pink bloom of a peach. And the eyes that smiled back to the speaker were suffused with tears."

The Times remarks that forty years may be a trifle to Bellini, but it's serious business for Chicago. "Yankee Doodle" was about the only opera "out west" forty years ago. And the Times is mistaken as to the party of the first part. When a Bee reporter interviewed Bellini, putting her down thirty years old, which the compositor corrected into forty, the songstress sent him a letter saying "I sent the paper to my mother who will doubtless be pleased at the compliments which were evidently intended for her."

Col. Dick Hinton of the Irrigation department in Uncle Jerry's bureau, tells a left-over bit of history about that momentous Cincinnati convention in 1876—how the gas burned so low in the hall it threatened to flicker out at the supreme moment for Mr. Blaine, and he (Hinton) went to the basement to get the janitor and that worthy turned the valve the wrong way, and was told "never mind." The convention adjourned and the danger was averted. The Colonel should be careful how he turns the light on at this late day. There is another convention in prospect and the man from Maine still lives and wears a plumed cockade when he rides down the avenue.

At the New York horse show the gray Arabian stallion presented to Gen. Grant by the Sultan of Turkey was the only pure Arabian and wore away the blue ribbon. It is Turkish custom when the recipient of a gift dies to return the gift to its donor, but the Sultan can never have Leopold again. Guess not.

Stereotyped headlines about defaulting bank officials and suicidal bullets might be kept in the newspaper offices to save frequent resetting.

A water famine is bad for New York, but think if it was—well, think if the prohibitionists had possession of the city.

WILCOX THE MAN

Who Will Succeed President Boice in the Management of the Merchants' National.

A gentleman interested in the Merchasts' National bank informed a Bee reporter that Mr. M. I. Wilcox would succeed Mr. Boice as president of the Merchants' National bank.

Mr. Lawrence Newman and Mr. N. H. Swayne absolutely refuse to accept the position owing to the press of other private business. Mr. Wilcox is now the vice-president of the bank, and has been really the acting president all during Mr. Boice's recent illness.

WILL BE PLENTY OF GAS.

The Trustees at Last Take Decisive Action,

And the Work of Piping the City is Discontinued—An Emphatic Presentation of Facts by Superintendent O'Herron.

The gas trustees have at last taken the bull by the horns, so to speak, and propose subduing the somewhat rebellious animals. A special meeting was held yesterday afternoon, and the matter of shutting down on all further extensions of the city lines was promptly adopted.

Superintendent O'Herron presented the following self-explanatory report:

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 18, 1891.

W. P. Heston, Esq., Manager Natural Gas Department, Toledo, Ohio:

Dear Sir—According to orders of the Board, I now have all boilers shut off that are used for power purposes. Hereafter I will give you a full report of same.

While this has slightly increased the pressure, it is very evident that something will have to be done in order to give private consumers a better supply of gas. I would therefore recommend that until such time as our pressure increases to such a point as it would warrant the further laying of lines and the making of contracts that the Board veto all lines that have heretofore been ordered laid and upon which no work has been done.

Also that no further contracts be made until such time as our pressure would warrant it.

I have carefully considered the situation, and as our pressure is gradually falling, it is necessary to do this in order to give the consumers we now have on the line a fair supply of gas.

While we have several thousand feet of pipe now strung for Contractor McMahon, this pipe can be used to good advantage in connecting up wells now being drilled and other wells that we may drill.

It is very evident that we must keep drilling and getting new territory, if we expect to supply consumers that we now have on the line, without laying any more lines or making any more contracts.

The following is list of lines ordered laid for the different contractors which they have no work done on:

Kerlin Bros.

4-inch on Washington street, from Twenty-Second to Monroe street.

3-inch on Bridge street, East Toledo, from Front to Third street.

4-inch in alley between Vermont and Franklin avenues, from Vermont to Franklin avenue.

6-inch in Franklin, from alley to Melrose street.

4-inch in Melrose, from Franklin to Fulton street.

3-inch in Fulton, from Melrose to Islington.

4-inch in Islington, from Fulton to Collingwood avenue.

McMahon & Co.

3-inch in Middle, from Broadway to alley between Broadway and Linden, 550 feet of city pipe line.

4-inch in Marion, from Western 200 feet south, 200 feet city pipe strung.

4-inch in Field, 375 feet south through Western avenue, 375 feet city pipe strung.

3-inch in Illinois, south side, from the terminus of the present line to a point about 300 feet west of Eleventh street, 300 feet city pipe strung.

4-inch in Oakwood, both sides, from Collingwood to Lawrence avenue, 5,200 feet city pipe strung.

4-inch in Peck street from Locust to Chestnut, 500 feet city pipe strung.

3-inch in Ralfe from Waine to Western avenue.

3-inch in Russel from Plymouth to White.

3-inch in Bloomfield from Jarvis 250 feet south.

6-inch in Elm from Bancroft to Page street, 850 feet.

3-inch in St. Marys from Western avenue 250 feet south.

4-inch in Brown avenue from Earl 800 feet north.

4-inch in Detroit avenue from Bancroft to Monroe, from Detroit to Smead, and Smead from Monroe to a point one-half to Bancroft, 1250 feet.

3-inch in Floyd from Islington to Collingwood, 1,150 feet.

4-inch in Forrer from Division 650 feet east.

6-inch in Forrer from Leik to Ewing, 1,350 feet.

4- and 3-inch in Gibbons from Western to Waine, thence in Waine from Lake Shore to Dale, thence in Dale from Waine to a point 200 feet from Waine, making about 1,200 feet 4-inch and 550 feet of 3-inch pipe.

4-inch in Hicks from a point 250 feet east of M. C. railroad to a point 250 feet west of Hawthorn street, 2,450 feet.

3-inch in Jarvis from Maumee to west end of street, thence 20 feet south in the alley, 650 feet.

4-inch in Lorlie and on the north side of Bancroft between Bancroft and the terminus of Lorlie, 350 feet.

4-inch in Lincoln to a point 280 feet east of Lawrence avenue.

4-inch in Yates from Walnut to Cherry street, 460 feet.

4-inch in Monroe from Michigan 150 feet west on the west side, 150 feet.

G. M. Acklin.

6- and 4-inch in Locust from Moore to Austin, 6-inch pipe about 800 feet and 4-inch pipe about 1,200 feet, 6-inch to the north line of Frederick and 4-inch beyond.

4-inch in Lagrange, west side, from Austin to Webber, connecting the last two lines in Austin from Locust to Lagrange, 3,100 feet.

If the above lines are laid many of them will be practically of no use when laid, as they extend so far out from the system now laid that there is no practical way of making return circuits, and consumers on them will be compelled to burn coal, as they certainly cannot expect a supply of gas under the existing circumstances.

Trusting this will be satisfactory, I am,

Very truly yours,

M. O'HERRON, Superintendent.

The matter was discussed at length and a resolution pertinent to the subject was tabled without a vote.

Dr. Jones and Mr. Greene were not certain that anything was to be gained by stopping the construction of the city lines, but finally the resolution in the following letter sent to the contractors this morning was adopted:

Gentlemen: The board of natural gas trustees, at a meeting held this day, adopted the following:

Resolved, That the recommendation made by Superintendent O'Herron of date Nov. 18, 1891, in relation to the discontinuance of laying pipe within the city, which is approved and endorsed by Manager Heston, be approved by the board, and that the manager is hereby directed to carry out said recommendation, in relation to the discontinuing of the laying of the above pipe.

You will therefore discontinue the laying of lines and services, under your contract, until further orders.

Yours Resp'y,

W. P. HESTON, Manager.

A contract was entered into with the Bell Telephone Co. for the construction of an extension of the field telephone line from the Bowman street regulator to the office.

President Parsons offered a resolution to the effect that all wells owned by the city be at once connected with the main line. Adopted.

The modification of the Grasser & Braud injunction was read and filed.

Superintendent Cotter, of the Water Works board, in acknowledging the receipt of a notification that gas would be cut off, expressed his surprise that after advancing the money to build the line that this course should be taken. He will call a meeting of his board to consider the matter. A special conference of both boards will be held to-day.

Supt. O'Herron said to a Bee this morning that with all the factories shut off there would be a plentiful supply of gas for the 6,000 private consumers at present on the city lines.

Manager Heston, recommended the action taken by the board yesterday fully a month ago.

THE WHEELING SHOPS

Will Start Up Next Month With a Good Force.

The Wheeling & Lake Erie railroad shops, at Ironville, will begin operations next month. All the machinery has been contracted for, and a portion of it is on the way and will be set up at once. The shops will start in with 100 hands, but as soon as operation is well under way it will require 200 men to do the work.

AS TO DIPHTHERIA.

A Physician Calls Attention to a Matter

Of Some Importance—A Pest House Needed—An Illustration Relative to Cases in One Family.

Said a prominent physician in regard to the diphtheria prevailing in the city: "Toledo ought to have a pest house or hospital and the death rate would be decreased. Generally speaking, the fearful death-rate is witnessed in our poorer families and in families where filth, poverty and ignorance go hand in hand. I can tell you of a case that came under my care about a month ago, and it is only a repetition of many cases which we are called to attend. There lived in the west part of the city a family of six—father, mother, two small girls and two boys. These four children and the mother have been ill of diphtheria and three children have died; three deaths in five cases. Diphtheria is considered the most fatal disease of childhood; but was it necessary to have three fatal results out of five cases? Each of these cases died within six days from the initial symptoms; they really choked to death, showing that the disease pursued its course unchecked to the end. Not two blocks from the above family lives a family of five children and a diphtheria case has been reported from there, which will probably require three or four more death certificates.

"The points of public interest in this matter are these: Cannot more of these cases be saved and contagion be prevented? The immediate cause of these deaths mentioned, has been diphtheria, but was that the only cause? Was there neglect in the sanitary conditions, or lack of skill or attention by the physician, or of intelligent and efficient nursing? Judge for yourself.

"In the homes above referred to, were to be seen, apples, potatoes, cabbages and turnips in all conditions of dirt and decay. Unwashed, uncombed children, in clothing sour and offensive by neglect; the houses were cobwebbed and besmeared by filth of varied qualities and odors, and the parents were too ignorant or indifferent to do efficient nursing. If a dozen men, unrestrained, had done their best, last Friday, to burn the East Toledo lumber yard, Toledo's fire department would have been apt to have witnessed the destruction of everything within a stone's throw of the Ohio Central docks, but in that case the fire department would not have been put to a greater disadvantage than is the board of health in its efforts to save such families as these from unsanitary conditions. Physicians and officers can do but little by requesting and urging the cleaning and fumigating of these homes.

"Now, if there was a public hospital where these diphtheretic victims could be bathed, and dressed in proper clothing, properly fed and intelligently nursed, giving the physicians facilities for treating cases successfully, there would be fewer cases to handle and more cures."

GOLDSTEIN CAUGHT

And Brought Back to This City from Port Huron.

Moses Plotkin, of Canton avenue, is wearing a large sized smile to-day over the fact that Louis Goldstein, who is wanted in police court for petit larceny, has been returned to the city, and thus Plotkin will not lose the $50, for which sum he went on Goldstein's bail. This man Goldstein jumped his bail over a week ago, and since that officers have been searching for him. Detective Carew went to Detroit with Plotkin, but returned empty-handed. Plotkin followed his man to Port Huron, and there had him arrested. He induced him to return without a requisition, and he was brought to this city last evening by Deputy Sheriff Clarke, of Port Huron.

COUNCIL JUDICIARY.

The Committee Acts Upon a Number of Claims.

The council committee on judiciary met last evening and had before them the usual lot of claims for abatement of assessments on property in various parts of the city. A number of these were allowed, while others were referred to sub-committees for investigation.

A claim was presented from Mr. Fitzmeyer for damages for personal injuries caused by falling on a defective sidewalk. Mr. Fitzmeyer did not ask for any specified amount, and his claim will be looked up.

The committee decided to pay Kind, Augsbach & Co. $15 per month from October, 1890, as rent for the lot on St. Clair street between the creek and the canal.

Quail Hunters Annoying the Farmers.

Judge Pendleton's Novel Barometer—Elks to Take in the Toledo Banquet—General Mention.

Findlay, Nov. 19.—(Special)—The farmers of this vicinity are up in arms to protect themselves from the numerous quail hunters, who, they claim, throw down their fences, scare their cattle, etc. The hunters also have their side of the story. In a number of the townships regular organized clubs have been organized.

Ex-Judge Pendleton, of this city, has a cow which is a regular weather prophet, and can foretell a storm better than the United States signal service. The first noticed of the cow's predictions was a couple of years ago, when on a nice pleasant morning the animal protested most vigorously against being taken out to the pasture and confined there. She was brought back and placed in the barn, and before noon a big storm came up, explaining the cow's aversion to being out all day. Numerous times since she has acted in the same manner, and always with the result of accurately foretelling a storm.

Judge Johnson has appointed Prosecuting Attorney Burket, L. A. Carabin and G. W. Ross as a committee to examine the annual report of the county commissioners.

A number of the members of Findlay lodge, No. 7, B. P. O. E., have received invitations and will be present at the Elks' banquet at Toledo next Monday evening.

The remains of Elmore W. Kerns were taken to his former home at Sidney, O., for burial. The services were in charge of Findlay lodge, No. 85, K. of P.

Small Fires.

The city fire department was called out last night by an alarm sent in from the Richardson Glass works. The sills under furnaces were on fire. The flames were soon subdued with slight damages.

A defective flue in the old Howard homestead on North Main street, called out the department yesterday. The flames were quickly conquered at a loss of about $25.

Took Her Home.

A man by the name of McGeorge came here last night from Cleveland looking for his daughter. She was found out at West Park, where she gave her name as Lucy Gray. After much persuasion her father induced her to return home. She gave as the reason for her leaving home that her parents were entirely to strict with her, and she concluded to skip out see the world.

New Hospital.

A company of home capitalists, including a number of the city physicians, are contemplating the purchase of the old factory building of the Western Rapid Typewriter company, on Lima avenue, and transferring it into a city hospital. It is something badly needed.

THE SALOONS IN OHIO.

They Pay Large Sums Into the Treasury.

An Effort Will Be Made to Increase the Dow Tax This Winter to Five Hundred Dollars.

Columbus, Nov. 19.—(Special)—The revenues derived from the Dow tax for the year just closed show a decided increase when compared with the receipts of the preceding year, and it necessarily follows that the saloons are becoming more numerous. The counties have all reported, and the state general revenue fund received for the current year is $525,068.43 from this souce, against $491,823.02 in 1890, being an increase of $33,285.41. The state gets only one-fifth of the revenue collected under the Dow law, and from this source, against $491,823.02 in collections from the saloons in the 86 counties (Geauga and Harrison having no saloons on the duplicate of 1891) were $2,625,342.15. Logan county was without saloons and paid nothing at the August settlement, while Harrison is on the duplicate for next year, leaving Geauga as the only county in the state in which there is not a single saloon or place where liquor is sold by the drink. The total number of saloons in the state assessed under the law was 11,129, against 10,180 at the close of the preceding year, being an increase of 949.

There has been some talk of an effort at the coming session of the legislature to increase the Dow tax from $250 to $500, and a few persons are found who want the amount put up as high as $1,000. The Saloon Keepers' association, organized just previous to the election, will make a demand for a decrease in the tax, if not to abolish it altogether.

There is no probability of abolition of the tax, and the general opinion is that the chances for an increase are much more favorable than those for a decrease.

It is pretty evident that the liquor question will be sprung before the session gets far along, and it is understood that several amendments are to be proposed to the Dow law.

Last winter a couple of laws affecting the liquor interests were placed upon the statute books that are practically dead letters in every city or the state. One of these is the Holliday law, preventing minors from entering saloons.

Absolutely no attention is paid to this law beyond the posting in some of the bar-rooms of an obscure notice to the effect that drinks are not sold to minors. Another dead letter is the Phillips law, prohibiting the sale of liquor in brothels.

HUMORS OF THE STREET.

A Story of Steedman.

Special Pension Agent James A. Wells, in a letter to Gen. John S. Kountz, of this city, tells an interesting original story of the late Gen. James B. Steedman, which illustrates the dead hero's generous heart, and points the traits by which he drew all men to him and wielded an influence over his comrades that few commanders did. Mr. Wells, in his introduction, says: "I wrote it down as Comrade Vanderwalker gave it to me." This is the story:

"One day in East Tennessee we halted to rest. I was tired and footsore and not a little hungry. Seeing a fine-looking chicken in a yard near by, my lameness left me and I went for that chicken. After chasing it around among the shrubbery for some time, I drove it into a fence corner and was about to seize it. Just then an officer ran up and placed his sword on the chicken and held it down and said to me, 'Grab it, my boy; grab it.' I grabbed it. The officer took the chicken in his hand, held it up and looked it over admiringly and then handed it to me, saying, 'My boy, that is a good, fat chicken. It will make a good meal and lots of broth.' I then noticed that the officer was General Steedman. My surprise at finding who my helper and fellow raider was caused the general to break into one of his peculiar, chuckling laughs, while his eyes danced and sparkled with fun and merriment. That evening, in bivouac, General Steedman had a bowl of as good chicken broth as was ever made, with a leg and part of the breast of a chicken in it. That night an Indiana soldier slept soundly and dreamed of chicken and chicken broth and great-hearted Steedman. It was one of many like incidents in which General Steedman figured. I have thought of it very often, and always with sincere pleasure. I tell you, comrade, the memory of that chicken held down in that fence corner by gallant Steedman's sword, in order that a tired and hungry private might have a good supper such as his mother cooked, is very often with me. The fact is, General Steedman could find more top-rails on a fence for his men and more ways to fill their stomachs and haversacks than any other officer I ever saw. He was kind and indulgent toward his men, but he expected them to fight when called upon. He was a hard and rapid and fearless fighter, a regular cyclone in battle. With him in the lead, the men went mad with enthusiasm and were resistless. We loved him, and we heard of his death with sorrow and regret."

Wood County Whisky.

One sees and hears many amusing things in Kerlin Bros.' office in the Lenk block on pay day. Yesterday Richard Kerlin was paying off his men, and among others who presented their claims for an allowance was Jim Duffy.

"I thought you were working in the field, Jim," said Mr. Kerlin as he looked at Duffy's time slip.

"I wus, sor, but I met wid an accident."

"An accident. How was that?"

Jim, who is a strapping big, brawny fellow, looked sheepishly at his questioner but did not answer.

"What kind of an accident did you meet with?" Mr. Kerlin again asked.

"I was treed, sor."

"Treed? Why there are no bears at Cygnet."

"No, sir, but there's wuss. I was up the tree three days."

"I don't understand you," said Mr. Kerlin, now somewhat curious.

"Well, sor, 'twas this way. You see they've got what they call a squirrel whisky down at Cygnet, and when you drink it the devil of a squirrel gets into you and you begin to climb trees right off. It's terrible stuff, so it is."

Jim's story was drowned in a roar of laughter.

"You needn't laugh," Jim continued when the laughter had subsided, "but I'm not as bad off as Charlie Latrop."

"What happened Charlie?" the Bee man asked.

"Charlie went down to Van Buren and he drank some of the muskrat whisky down there and they haven't seen him since."

"What do you suppose has become of him, Jim?"

"Oh, crawled into a hole or maybe a sewer. There's no tellin' what wan will do when they drink Wood county whisky. I'm not surprised to hear of them stealin' horses and things over there. It's terrible stuff, so it is."

Mr. Kerlin explained later that Jim was just recovering from an attack of jim-jams.

THE MOTTO.

A lover gave the wedding ring
Into the goldsmith's hand.
"Grave me," he said, "a tender thought
Within this golden band."
The goldsmith graved,
With careful art,
"Till death us part."

The wedding bells rang gladly out,
The husband said: "Oh, wife,
Together we will share the grief,
The happiness of life.
I give to thee
My hand, my heart,
Till death us part."

'Twas she that lifted now his hand
(O, love, that this should be!)
Then on it placed the golden band,
And whispered tenderly:
"Till death us join,
Lo, thou art mine
And I am thine!

"And when death joins we never more
Shall know an aching heart;
The bridal of that better love
Death has no power to part,
That troth will be
For thee and me
Eternity."

So up the hill and down the hill,
Through fifty changing years,
They shared each other's happiness,
They dried each other's tears.
Alas! Alas!
That death's cold dart
Such love can part!

But one sad day she stood alone
Beside his narrow bed;
She drew the ring from off her hand
And to the goldsmith said:
"Oh, man who graved
With careful art,
'Till death us part.'

"Now grave four other words for me:
'Till death us join.'" He took
The precious golden band once more,
With solemn, wistful look.
And wrought with care
For love, not coin:
"Till death us join."

ENTERTAINMENTS.

Joseph Jefferson and Company in The Rivals.

First-Class Attractions for Next Week—Something About the High Class Comedy, "Jane."

"The Rivals" at the Wheeler opera house last evening drew a very large and fashionable audience, and as a matter of course all were well pleased. After the long list of horse play and farce comedies that are now inflicted upon the public, it was a great relief to witness a comedy of such high order as the Rivals, where the fun is made by the real wit in the play and magnificent acting takes the place of mechanical trickery.

Joseph Jefferson, as Bob Acres, and Mrs. John Drew, as Mrs. Malaprop, need no comment on their splendid work. The part of Sir Lucius O'Trigger, usually filled by W. J. Florence, was played by Joseph Jefferson, jr., last evening, and considering all circumstances his work was very creditable. His acting cannot be compared with that of Florence, but he is a young man of much promise. There was also another Jefferson in the cast last evening, Thomas Jefferson, playing the part of Fag.

The whole company is strong, every member being an actor of a high order, and not one of the characters had a weak interpretation. W. F. Owen, as Sir Anthony Absolute; J. H. Barnes, as Captain Absolute; Viola Allen, as Lydia Languish, and Carrie Jackson, as Lucy, were exceptionally good.

Master and Man.

This strong realistic drama is drawing big houses at the People's this week, and it well deserves them. The play is one of merit and is interpreted by a strong company.

A New Thing.

The attraction booked for the Wheeler Wednesday, November 25, is the excellent society comedy Jane. It is the result of French and English authorship, and Wm. Gillette has adapted the play for American audiences. Jane had a run of over 400 nights in London, and after Mr. Gillette went over the manuscript it was presented at the Madison Square theater over 100 times, and could have continued indefinitely in New York had it not been possible to retain the theater for a longer period.

When it was first presented even the critics laughed, but of course they had to frown at the same time, so they said "we have seen many of the incidents in other comedies." They told the truth, half a dozen different comedies have been taken from the original of Jane in the French, but not one of them can rival Jane either in the brightness of the dialogue or in the skillful cleverness of the complicated situations.

Even in the hot nights of last summer large audiences went to see the comedy, and any entertainment less interesting would have been a decided bore. Toledo society appreciating the importance of the attraction, is already talking of the coming play.

The company selected is one of the strongest under that enterprising management. It includes Miss Johnstone Bennett, one of the best of individual character actresses; Paul Arthur, the clever comedian; R. F. Cotton, an English actor; M. C. Daly, the admirable "old man" actor, formerly with Annie Pixley; Maggie Halloway, Elaine Ellson, Amelia Summerville, whom everybody laughed at as the "simple village maiden" with Dixey in Adonis; E. Schuetz Edwards, Master James Totten and Herbert Fortier. Jane will be preceded by a curtain raiser entitled The Better Part, which is the work of two young American authors. Mr. Brady received word from Pittsburg this morning that the society of that city were out en masse, where the comedy began a week's engagement at the Alvin theater, and Jane received 10 curtain calls.

The Cartridge Box.

Memorial hall was filled, gallery and all, last evening, with eager spectators to witness the second performance of the Cadets' Cartridge Box, which, if possible, was better than the first night. "Wanted—Actors," seems to be very "taking," and applause followed applause as each character appeared in the scene. Chas. N. O'Brien, as Pat O'Rourke, was great and Goldie Burbank as well as the rest of the caste came in for their share of honors. No boquets.

The Piano Drill by Toledo Cadets was rendered without a mistake, and was a subject for many complimentary comments.

The Fair department is being well patronized as well as the refreshment room. Dancing was enjoyed until 12 o'clock last night by a large number of young people, and altogether the Cadets are to be congratulated upon their success.

The entertainment will be repeated tonight, after which dancing will contiue until two o'clock to-morrow morning, cars having been chartered for that hour to convey the patrons to their homes.

Nellie McHenry.

The name of Nellie McHenry is too well known in Toledo to need comment or recommendation. She has danced and sung herself into the hearts of many of the theater-goers of this city. There are few comediennes coming here annually who have the following which jolly Nellie has. She has ever been a prime favorite, as in fact she appears to be everywhere she goes. This year she comes at the head of a strong support in the most successful play she ever appeared in. It is bran new and is called "A Night at the Circus." It is by H. Grattan Donnelly, who wrote "Ship Ahoy," "Natural Gas," "Later On," etc. The play has made a big hit everywhere it has been seen and has proven to be the greatest winner the winsome Nellie has ever had the luck to own. Miss McHenry and her husband John Webster are at the head of the cast, which includes a number of the strongest comedians in America.

Carmencita.

Monday evening next at Wheeler's Carmencita, who has been rightly termed the empress of dance, will appear, assisted by the original Spanish Students, and Koster and Bial's Vaudeville company. This is her first tour as a star. During her tour, which is but eight weeks old, her success has been something astounding. The wild gypsy spirit that pervades her movements while at the same time delicate and free from extravagant abandon, has commanded applause even from the coldest of her audiences.

Accompanied by the Spanish Students she consequently dances to the music of her native land. The instruments used are the cello, violin, guitar and mandolin. The Students are accomplished musicians and were engaged direct from the Royal Conservatory at Madrid.

During her Toledo engagement the lovely dancer will be seen in the following dances: La Cachucha, La Madricena, Elvito, Sanjago, El Petenera, El Bolera, Panaderos, Caballero de Gracia, and La Sevillana.

The Vaudeville Company which has been specially engaged for Carmencita's tour, is said to be an unusually strong one, and includes John Le Clair, fantasist, equilibrist and shadographist, the Warschau brothers, boy comedians and dancers. Their act is said to be very unique and entirely new to this country. Les Toulousians quartette from the Les Folies Berges, Paris. The great Barra Troupe, eccentric musicians. A great deal of interest is already manifest among society leaders of Toledo to see this wonderful dancer who held New York swelldom at her feet for 17 months. Several theater parties have been arranged for and seats are in great demand.

Rhea.

The Thanksgiving attraction at Wheeler's is Rhea in La Czarine. She will give three performances here, on Thursday of next week and is assured of a welcome. She has with her a splendid company and the cast is made up as follows:

Peter the Great, Czar of Russia.....
.....Mr. William Harris
Prince Menzikoff, Prime Minister.....
.....Mr. Erroll Dunbar
Count Sapieha, afterwards Polish Ambassador.....Mr. L. Rees
Admiral Villerbeck, of the Russian Navy.....Mr. J. R. Amory
Jakinsky, Officer of the Guard.....
.....Mr. Burr Caruth
An Usher.....Mr. M. C. Bowers
Olga, daughter of Prince Menzikoff.....
.....Miss Una Abell
Countess Loubanoff.....Miss Alice Graeme
Princess Mariskine..Miss Florence Sherwood
Ladies of Honor.
Catharine, afterwards Catharine I. of Russia.....Rhea
The Bostonians.

That splendid opera troupe, the Bostonians, will hold the boards at Wheeler's Monday evening, November 30. The Dramatic News says:

"The production of the famous comic opera, Robin Hood, by the Bostonians in this city was an unmistakable success. Into it are crowded so many gems that at no point during the performance is the enjoyment of the audience permitted to relax. It is an absolute pleasure to note the unquestioned and deserved success which has been achieved. The opera is a success from start to finish. Many of the members received four and five encores, and every member of the company deserves the highest praise."

THE POLICE BOARD

Decide That the City Pound Must Go,

And That Immediately—They Also Discuss Electric Lights and Receive Charges Against Several Officers.

The police board held a brief session last evening, and but little business was transacted. City Solicitor Read was present, and made a request to the board on behalf of the council asking them to pass a resolution directing the patrolmen to report all the electric lights that do not burn. He did not think that all were reported.

Chief O'Dwyer stated that the men were reporting the lights, and this under such a resolution passed by the board some two years ago.

It was decided to instruct the officers to keep a sharper lookout and report lights each week.

Health Officer Fisher made another report on the city pound and recommended that it be drained and filled up or removed to higher ground, as in its present condition it is a nuisance and a menace to the community.

After a brief discussion the board adopted Dr. Fisher's suggestion, and decided that the pound must be changed.

Charges were preferred against Patrolman Cooper for neglect of duty, and against Patrolman Wegner for intoxication. Both men were suspended and ordered to appear before the board at the next meeting for trial.

Mr. L. Konker preferred charges against Patrolmen Kline, Shaefer, Watson, Wegner and Langenderfer for illegally arresting him, and they were also ordered to appear before the next meeting of the board.

MINING INTERESTS DISCUSSED.

A Large Gathering in Denver—Interesting Subjects to Be Considered.

Denver, Col., Nov. 19.—The largest gathering of mining men ever assembled at one time is in attendance on the mining congress. It is estimated that fully 10,000 people are present. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss the ways and means for the advancement of the mining industry.

A national interest is being taken in the affair and hundreds of delegates and visitors from the east are present.

One of the objects of the congress is to urge the adoption of the recommendation to that national congress looking to the passing of improved laws on locating and developing mining claims.

The western delegates are absorbed in the question of silver legislation, and most of them are strongly in favor of free and unlimited silver coinage.

It is claimed that the eastern nonmetallists have packed the congress and will attempt to sidetrack the issue. A lively fight is expected.

That tired, languid feeling and dull headache is very disagreeable. Take two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring, and you will find relief. They never fail to do good.

ART SALE.

New York, Nov. 19.—The sale of the Verestchagin collection of pictures was concluded last night. The total sum realized for the two days' sale was $72,635. The collection went for a fraction of what it is said to be worth.

FALL LEAVES.

An Infinite Variety in Quality and Color.

Publishers Sending Out Beautiful Holiday Work.

Gibson's "Fifty Convenient Houses"—East Indian Romance—A New Unknown—Max O'Rell—Good Stories in Paper Covers—Magazines—Notes.

A large, handsome volume just issued by Thomas Y. Crowwell & Co., New York, is "Convenient Houses with Fifty Plans for the Housekeeper, Architect and Housewife," by Louis H. Gibson, the well-known architect of Indianapolis. Mr. Gibson is perhaps the most enthusiastic man in his profession in the United States. His hobby is to blend the artistic and the useful, and being an artist as well as an architect, his success is quite phenomenal. The tourist runs upon him in a remote corner of the old world, picking out a quaint gable here, an idea in roof or dormer there, studying the famous old chateaux jr ancient Brittany, "pursuing" an angle or an idea in some corner of Paris or Rome that the ordinary eye would never notice a second time. Mr. Gibson was sent across the water by the journals of his profession a year or more ago for this special study, and his letters and illustrations will doubtless form a second volume, on his return to the United States.

In the preface to the present volume the author says his work is intended to "deal with houses in a housekeeping spirit." Carrying out this idea the first division is "A Journey Through the House," beginning at the porch, moving through the different rooms, considering the various details. Following the second division, "Architect and Housewife," are fifty plans for convenient houses, illustrated and described; and in nearly every instance, these have been built, exactly or with slight variations. A section is devoted to practical housebuilding, wherein specifications, shorn of technicalities, are given for everything that may pertain to a dwelling house. The closing chapters are devoted to business points, the letting of contracts, the "getting of homes," arranging of monthly payment schemes, building association plans, etc., making a most complete volume that the professional and non-professional builder, and, as well, the aspirant for a modest home on small means can turn to with perfect confidence. The book is in large type, and exceptionally handsome in its make-up and illustrations.

"The Lady of Cawnpore," by Frank Vincent and Albert Edmund Lancaster, is an Indian romance, as its title indicates, that fairly out-Kiplings Kipling and outrivals Haggard. The heroine and sub-heroine are finely drawn picturesque characters, the villainy of the tale is well managed, and the Hindu dancing girl and the Brahmin philosopher give a dash of brilliant coloring. The tale is fascinating in its eastern imagery and in its contrasts. New York and Benares are far apart in chronology as in miles. Marmaduke Allan reminds the reader of Tom Moore's hero in the "Epicurean." Mr. Vincent won a host of readers with his "Land of the White Elephant," and it enhances the interest of his work to know he has visited the lands wherein he revels in such rich romance. His co-laborer is a well-known journalist of Philadelphia, a brilliant essayist, poet and playwright. It must have been he who penned the fine sonnet that closes the book, entitled "To a Woman." The tale is, perhaps, too crowded with incident, but is brilliant and fascinating from first to last. Published by Funks & Wagnalls, N. Y. For sale in Toledo by Brown, Eager & Hull.

The same quality that made "Crowded Out o' Crofield" so popular pervades W. O. Stoddard's later work, "Little Smoke, a tale of the Sioux," just published by Appleton & Co., N. Y. The time of the story is before and after the Custer massacre and Sitting Bull and other Sioux chiefs whose names are familiar are woven into the story of "Little Smoke," the Indian boy. Bert Raynor, on a ranch with his uncles in the near neighborhood, the white hero boy, is from Marietta, Ohio, and the book of adventure closes with his return to his old home and anxious parents. Authentic history is woven with the fiction and the book can be recommended as a holiday present for young people both for the information and entertainment it contains. Sold by Brown, Eager & Hull.

"European Relations, a Tyrolese Sketch," by Talmage Dalin, is the latest issue in Cassells & Co.'s "Unknown" Library. It's a pretty, natural story of a fair American widow, her beautiful daughter of 17 years and little son—plain Mrs. Berg, Natalie and little Fritz of New York. Mr. Berg, recently deceased, was the son of an Austrian count but for good reasons of his own he had dropped his title as he was poor and all the honors the "castle" and emoluments went to elder sons. He became a thorough American. After his death the "European Relations" invited the family to the castle and their touring in the old world, with a love episode for Natalie included, their visit among the relations are narrated as Mrs. Burton Harrison might do it. Indeed, the story, especially in its ending, bears a similarity to the "Anglomaniacs." This "unknown" series, like the No-Name series of years ago, is proving an immense success. "John Sherman and Dhoya" is the announced title of the next volume to be published. Probably not the Ohio statesman in romance.

With the approach of the holiday season always comes an "Elsie" book. "Elsie's Vacation," just issued, is the Seventeenth one of the series and is a thoroughly good girl's story, the heroine of the story being the granddaughter of the first Elsie. Written by Martha Finley and published by Dodd, Mead & Co.

"The Children of Wilton Chase" by L. T. Meade, is a wholesome story for young people, full of incident and interest. It gives six original illustrations by Everard Hopkins, is attractive in its blue, gray and gold covers; a pretty gift book for the holidays. For sale by Brown, Eager & Hull. $1.50.

E. S. Ellis is known to the reading world as author of the "Great Rivers Series," "A Youth's History of the United States," and other works of like character. His latest book, "Lost in Samoa, a Tale of Adventure in the Navigator Islands," is just issued from the house of Cassell & Co., N. Y. It is an exciting story of land and sea, with considerable information of the South Sea islands, the people and their customs, scattered through the pages. An attractive book in appearance, with eight original illustrations.

"The Adventures of a Fair Rebel," by Matt Crim, is a story of the late war which reads like a relation of events that actually happened. It is simply told. The scenes are laid in North Carolina and Georgia, and the story follows the progress of the war. A handsome book as to binding and typography, as are all that come from the Cassell & Co. Publishing house.

"A Frenchman in America," by Max O'Rell, published by Cassell & Co., is on the Bee book table, as, indeed, on thousands of other tables in America. (One of the first things the conceited American learns when he travels in Europe is that the United States is not "America." When told you are an American they ask, "From the States or Canada?") Max O'Rell's book embraces his lecture tour through both countries. M. Blouet says some very sharp things about us, as we strike him, but he does it in such an inimitable way we only smile and "let it go." Then he immediately salves it with a fine flavored compliment and makes it quite serene for all concerned. He caricatures our hotels, which any cosmopolitan knows are the most comfortable, luxuriant and convenient of any in the world. We are not expected to pay every man who serves us, fixing his salary for such obligation a dozen times a day. We are not sent to bed in even the country houses with a tallow dip by which to read our chapter and make our nightime toilet. But n'importe, its all according to taste and habit; the comforts we most count upon Max finds to be queer, simply because he is not accustomed to them. He gives to American women the most exalted praise. If he "were to be born again; he would ask to be born an American woman." It goes without saying the book is racy in every page. The mistakes he makes in "sizing us up" are amusing. He does as every other traveler is prone to do, striking a peculiarity he puts it down as a typical condition. For instance, in some hotel he found a coiled rope, to be used in case of fire, and describes it as our kind of a fire escape. When it comes to comparisons of French, English and American traits, M. Blouet fairly scintillates with wit and keen discrimination. The book is well illustrated, having over one hundred and thirty cuts, by E. W. Kemble. For sale by Brown, Eager & Hull.

The story of Francis Cludde, by Stanley J. Weyman, author of the House of the Wolf, is published by Cassell & Co., N. Y. It is an English story running through the political and churchly excitement of forty years from the Queen's accession, ending happily.

In Paper Covers.

"The Tragedy of Ida Noble," by W. Clark Russell, is number 82 of Appleton's Town and Country Library. It is a well-told tale of sea-faring life with a tragic story of a girl heroine involved. 50 cents.

"The New Job," by Leopold von Sacher Masoch, translated by Harriet Lubir Cohen, is an extra number in Cassell's Sunshine Series. This is the first introduction of Sacher Masoch, the Austrian-Polish novelist to the American reading public. He is well known and read in Paris and Berlin. His translator says of him: "He is a student of nature in the broadest sense of the term, strong in his personality, broad in his sympathies, and a faithful worker for the welfare of the people he loves. He is anti-German in his opinions, upholds the Austrian court and opposes the Polish nobles. The Gallican peasant is a tender and well-beloved subject in his hands." There is tender pathos, a sublime patience and a beautiful heroism in the character of Theofil Pisarenko, nicknamed "Job." It is common among the Little Russians to give one another nick-names corresponding to the character, through kind regard and not ridicule. The word pictures of nature are delicious in color and fragrance, and the homely scenes of peasant life are drawn by an artist's hand, depicting the fortitude of the slave and the cruelty of the master. American readers have to thank translator and publisher for introducing to them so thoroughly delightful a writer.

The Cassells have issued "A Girl in the Karpathians" in paper covers. Critics have said all manner of pleasant things about this bright vivacious and entertaining little book. Some one has declared there is too much of what Howells calls "swagger" in it and perhaps there is. There is the charm that hangs an interest about every small detail of travel. Pages upon the habits of the flea are too amusing to skip. The glimpses of life in East Galicia are touched with local color, and a hearty, chatty naturalness pervades the recital of adventures, observations and conclusions.

Two translations from the French, issued in the highest style of art by Dodd Mead & Co., are "The Haunted Pool," by George Sand and a newer story, "A Marriage for Love," by Ludovic Halevy, of the Academie Francaise, both translated by Frank Hunter Potter; the first illustrated by fourteen etchings by Rudaux, the other by one as famous in art, Wilson de Meza. Every page has elaborate head and tail piece, the paper is fine, heavy, satin-face, wide margin and decorative topography, with illuminated paper covers.

Magazines.

The condition of Europe as regards peace or war is discussed in the November Forum by Prof. Edward A. Freeman and William R. Thayer. Herbert Welsh, a born Pennsylvanian and thorough scholar, writes of the "Degradation of Pennsylvania Politics;" Josiah Quincy, of the "Regulation of the Massachusetts Lobby." "University Life for Women" is depicted by Annie J. Clough, principal of Newnham college, Cambridge, England, an institution for the higher education of women, a sort of Annex to Cambridge University. Judge Chas. S. Zane, chief justice of the supreme court of Utah, contributes a paper on the "Death of Polygamy in Utah." A paper that should command general attention is written by Isaac B. Potter, secretary of the New York State Roads Improvement association on the subject of good country roads to which the Bee will call further notice later. "American Shipbuilding and Commercial Supremacy," by C. H. Cramp; "The Danger of the Farmers' Alliance," by Senator John T. Morgan, and "The Commercial Future of the Pacific States," by Wm. L. Merry, ex-secretary of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, complete the very excellent number. To read the Forum, monthly, is to keep abreast of the times and in touch with the best thought in the comprehensive literature of both continents. The additional page giving a brief sketch of the writers of the issue is a happy thought. One reads a paper with more interest assured of the thorough equipment of its author.

The Writer gives us a fine picture of Hamlin Garland and two appreciative sketches of him and his work. Personal tributes to Lowell from Julia Ward Howe, T. W. Higginson and others, are in the same number.

The November number of the Engineering Magazine presents a notably good table of contents; among the many valuable papers are: Lessons of the Park Place Disaster, by Edw. Atkinson; the World's Fair Buildings, by Ass't Engineer Frietag; the "Use of Building Laws," by Edw. Henry and J. Beverly Robinson. This magazine is well edited and is an adjunct for great good in its chosen field.

The Christmas number of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly is a superb issue, appearing in a handsome gray and old-gold cover. Joaquin Miller is accorded the place of honor with his story, "The Red Shield." He is also pictured, mounted on a horse, on "The Heights" where his home is built, near Oakland, Cal. The magazine contains 125 pages of reading matter on a great variety of topics, well illustrated, as Leslie's always is.

The Christmas stories and sketches are unusually pleasing and the partner in editorship as well as matrimony, William C. Kingsbury Wilde, contributes a love sonnet, tribute to his bride, Mrs. Leslie, perhaps. It is very dainty and graceful:

If through excess of love for you, my sweet,
My passion did my temperate reason blind,
If fretful fancy made my lips unkind,
And words rang harsh, and thoughts were all unmeet
To make the conquest of yourself complete,
Forgive me, sweetheart! Trust me, you will find
My love one day deep in your life entwined,
And tendrilled round your funermost heart-beat.

Into Love's water have I cast a stone,
Where gently mirrored lay your face so fair;
But now the rippling circles, wider grown,
Have blurred the clear gray eyes and golden hair.
Love! Can no love for all my faults atone?
Should the waves quiet, will you still be there?

"Poet-Lore," the monthly magazine devoted to Shakspeare, Browning and the study of comparative literature, has entered its second volume, with promise of growing excellence fulfilled. In the current number, in addition to other good things, is "The Sonnet Sonnetized," by Harriet H. Robinson, author of "Pandora," which is so happy in its metaphor and so graceful in expression, we quote it for our readers:

The sonnet is mechanical in part,
And part ideal. The cube root of song,
Conceive your thought, then build the verse along
In true Petrarchan style. With rythmic art
To all the fourteen lines a grace impart.
Ten-syllable the verse, the rhymes be strong;
Within the octave only two belong,
And in the sestet three. And here the heart
Of all the sonnet lies. Concentred fast,
Your thought, developed through each separate line,
Here breaks the bounds and struggles to be free
Through hampering bars of rhyme; and when the last
Is reached, away it soars—a breath divine—
In charmed flight towards immortality.

The December number, of the Magazine of Art, for the first time presents a colored frontispiece: "A Breezy Day." The publishers call the process, "an experiment and a success." The name of the process is chromotypogravure, the same as is used in the Paris "Figaro." The print was made in Paris, from the picture, as above named, by H. E. Detmold. It represents a laden two-wheeled farm cart, with three horses, tandem in the French fashion, the position of which and the sweep of mane and foretop suggesting the breezes. The tints of earth and sky are beautiful, but if the writer were called upon to name it, "Spring on the Marsh," or, "A Wet Day," would be the substitution. "Primitive Methodists," illustration by W. H. Y. Titcomb, engraved by Berthold and accompanied by notes by Fred Wetmore, is an interesting contribution.

In a paper on the collection of Mr. Alexander Henderson, Mr. Walter Shaw-Sparrow gives an independent and spirited criticism of Burne-Jones's "Six Days of Creation." Papers of value and interest to artists and copious and timely notes on art happenings make up an excellent number. Cassell's, $3.50 a year.

The New England Magazine has a distinctive flavor in correspondence with its title. The November number is a beautiful Lowell memorial in two fine contributions. "A Pot of Honey," by Dora Read Goodale, is a poem with much sweetness in it. "The Great Dike," by Rev. S. R. Dennen, D. D., an old-fashioned plea for the home, is a thoughtful paper that should have attention. "John Howard Payne's Southern Sweetheart," is an interesting contribution to our knowledge of the personal life and struggles of the author of "Sweet Home." The number is rich in variety, and readable in every particular.

Peterson for the Christmas month presents its double-sheet "Les Modes Parisiennes" all in tan and brown costumes in a snow storm. The closing number of the 50th year, and a brighter and better one was never issued. New writers of fame are added to the list for another year and the price remains the same—$2 a year, with yet lower club rates. Send for sample copy.

Notes.

To appreciate the best work of the editorial scissors and to realize that such work needs a fine quality of mind for literature behind the implement, one should read the monthly magazine of Current Literature. The student or general reader who would keep himself posted and yet who has neither time nor means to glean from the world of magazine literature for himself, finds it done for him in Current Literature, which is sent to subscribers for $3 a year.

Table Talk chats helpfully of Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners and a score of other topics of interest to the housekeeper. It is one of the best home magazines published. Mrs. Rorer, principal of the Philadelphia Cooking School, is its editor; $1 a year, 10 cents a copy. The December number is on the news stands.

"Our Little Ones and the Nursery" is the neatest, daintiest, prettiest periodical for the children—the wee ones, that comes to the Bee table. Its close rival is Jennie Wren's "Doll's Dressmaker," the only one of its kind and a success from the beginning. The first is published in Boston (196 Summer street), the "Dressmaker," 35 East Seventy-seventh street, New York.

"The Shop Lifter," by Geo. Ohnet, 25 cents, is issued by the Waverly company, New York.

"Father Stafford," by Armstrong Hope, author of "A Man of Mark," is number 87 of Cassell's Sunshine series. The stories in this series can be confidently recommended.

The American Agriculturist has entered its fiftieth volume. It is the model magazine for farmers, one which they can not afford to do without. Send to Orange Judd, publisher, New York, for sample copy with splendid new premium list.

The November Domestic Monthly is bright with new fashions and home chit-chat. "Carpets and their manufacture" and "Life in the Carolina Mountains" are two excellent papers. This magazine has entered its thirty-sixth volume, and no household can ask for anything more entertaining and helpful, and for the price of $1,50 a year.

The frequent appearance of selections in all the newspapers from the Ladies' Home Journal attests more than any words of praise the popularity of the magazine. It is simply a marvel of the best things for $1 a year.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles

London wheat market quiet and steady. Weather wet. No corn offered. Liverpool wheat dull, free offerings. Corn steady, with less demand.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points to-day are 978,067 bu, compared with 584,153 bu on the same day last year.

Wheat opened about 1c lower this morning. Cables were easier and there was nothing bullish to sustain prices, and all markets sold gradually off. The Cincinnati Price Current of this morning says: "Wheat crop further improved until pressent freeze which does not necessarily imply serious disparagement to the outlook considering natural hardiness of the plant. Moisture checked corn gathering, but freezing weather now hastening it into merchantable condition.

English markets close quiet and lower, some reports say almost panicky, with the greater decline on the far futures. Receipts in the northwest to-day, 840 cars. Receipts here to-day are 49 cars wheat, only 20 of corn, 2 of oats, and 16 of rye.

Seed Market.

New York Seed.—There has been considerable rejection of clover seed delivered on old contracts, which contained a considerable percentage of buckhorn, as seed with this mixture is almost unsalable on the other side, and the average arrivals are of low grades, which makes trade difficult, as the only kind wanted is fancy clover, hulked and thoroughly cleaned, which will bring 8 1-2c f. o. b., while common seeds are selling as low as 7c. Flax still held at $1 07 1-4, without business reported. Timothy nominal, at $1 40@1 60.

THE STRIKE IS ENDED.

Fourteen Wheeling & Lake Erie Switchmen

Return to Work—Manager Woodford Meets the Committee and Submits a Schedule Which Is Agreed To.

The strike in the Wheeling & Lake Erie yards is ended.

All difficulties have been amicably settled, and the men are at work as though nothing had happened.

At 10 o'clock this morning Superintendent Woodford called the committee in and read to them the following communication directed to the yardmaster:

You are hereby instructed to employ 14 men whose names I have submitted to you. The pay of such yardmen will be as named to you on the 12th instant, which was as follows:

Day conductors	$2.60
Day helpers	2.15
Night conductors	2.70
Night helpers	2.25

Ten hours shall constitute a day's work, and overtime shall be allowed after 10 hours. I trust that this increased compensation will prove satisfactory, and that the Wheeling & Lake Erie will receive the hearty co-operation of all your men. Very truly

W. R. WOODFORD.

The men approved of this schedule and agreed to return to work. The 14 men selected were the ones who were the least implicated in the trouble instigated during the strike. Danzey, who was discharged and a demand made for his reinstatement, was not included in the 14

Mr. Woodford said to a Bee: "The men have gone back to work without prejudice and as long as they give the company good service they will be retained. They all started to work with the best feeling and agreed to exert their utmost efforts in our behalf. The men on the road are quiet, and the older men agree that the action taken had been hasty. I have informed them that I will receive them in this matter as soon as I have the time to do so. However, I don't apprehend any trouble from this source.

ACTOR FLORENCE.

He Shows Signs of Improvement but His Condition is Serious.

Philadelphia, Nov. 19.—The doctors attending Mr. Florence say they will issue no bulletins to-day.

Inspector Conlin said this morning that Mr. Florence had passed almost all of yesterday in a comatose condition. He was conscious this morning and talked a little with those about him. He took some jelly this morning and later was given a small cup of beef tea.

The inspector says the chief fears at present were of heart failure or Mr. Florence's inability to cough up the phlegm which renders breathing at times difficult.

While he thought there was some slight improvement he cautioned his bearer to make his statement of improvement "very, very conservative."

MOST PEOPLE
Know only a comparatively few things thoroughly—all else is more or less uncertain.
Take your own case. What do you know about CARPETS, for instance? Are you competent to detect poor materials, or imperfect weaving, or unreliable colorings, or old-style patterns?
No.
Then will it not be wisdom on your part to make your purchases of CARPETS where all these points are taken care of in your interest, and where you are protected, not only from direct misrepresentation, but from the results of your own inexperience?
That seems plain enough.
Just two things we promise every customer. They are these:
That every salesman shall tell the whole truth about every piece of goods offered for sale; that anything which proves imperfect, through the appearance of any hidden defect subsequent to purchase, shall be made right.
The name of our firm stands behind these two guarantees.
Very likely you are thinking of purchasing one or more CARPETS shortly. If so, consider what we have said.

BLANKET YOUR HORSE.

Now that cold weather is at hand it is to the interest of every person to see that his stock is properly cared for. Every one knows how he feels when he is not perfectly warm and protected from the colds and draughts, and how apt he is to catch cold. There is no animal which is so susceptible to draughts and chills as your horse. At night, when sleeping his blood becomes sluggish and he is liable to catch cold. In recent years it has become the fixed rule with all owners of good stock to carefully blanket their horses not only when out of doors, but also in the stable. It has been found that horses eat less to keep warm, are kept in better condition, and are more valuable by being blanketed. One of the most essential features which should be looked at when purchasing a horse blanket is its strength. Too much credit cannot be gives to the manufacturers of the celebrated 5-A Horse Blankets, who for years have insisted upon putting strong blankets upon the market, believing that the users of horse blankets would in time recognize the necessity and demand the 5-A Horse Blankets. The 5-A Blanket is what you want. There are 100 different styles made square for outdoor use and shaped for stable use at prices to suit everybody.

A Laborer Who Is Not Likely to Lose His Pick.

Pat O'Roe, who has been working on the city pipe line, was arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of petit larceny. The man was arrested on suspicion while trying to sell three shovels and a pick, and could not give a satisfactory account of how he came by the tools. Kerlin Brothers, the contractors, have suffered considerable loss by having tools stolen and identified these as belonging to them. In court, however, Mr. Kerlin could not positively swear that the tools belonged to him, and O'Roe was discharged, triumphantly leaving the court room with the tools over his back.
